Presbyterian-St. Luke's May Build In Schaumburg

Plans For Hospital To Be Unveiled?

by STEVE BROWN

A major announcement is expected tonight outlining plans for construction of a large-scale hospital in Schaumburg.

Informed sources report that Chicago's Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center plans to construct a hospital in the village in the near future.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher said he was "not at liberty to even discuss the topic of hospitals" when questioned yesterday about the report. But he said a major announcement about hospitals will be made at the village board session tonight.

Schaumburg has a 20-acre site pledged for a hospital on Schaumburg Road near Illinois Boulevard.

Officials for the hospital refused to deny the reported plans. They only said that a major announcement about expansion of hospital facilities and programs will be made Friday.

SPECULATION about the hospital breakthrough began earlier this week when Atcher extended a special invitation to other village leaders and members of village advisory boards to attend the meeting.

The report of the hospital plans comes in the midst of a massive $20,000 health planning study that has been undertaken by two area hospitals and officials in Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Hanover Park.

The Northwest Cook County Health Needs Study Committee recently received a $13,000 state grant for research on the best site for a new hospital in the three-village area.

John Zacharias of the Chicago Hospital Council, an advisory group working with the local committee, said that the study would continue regardless of the Presbyterian-St. Luke's plans.

He said that late last year the hospital had announced a multi-million dollar project to establish satellite medical facilities in a number of communities, but those plans fell through.

IT IS NOT known how large the hospital facilities will be. Details of the construction plans or a timetable for opening of the facility were not available.

The probable site for the hospital, in an area known as Sarah's Grove, has caused much controversy in recent years. Officials from other communities had said that the site is not centrally located enough to serve all communities.

Atcher has defended the proposed location many times. He also has said that the area might require as many as three hospitals by 1980.

Heavy Rains Hit Area Again

Heavy rains and lightning caused flooding and some damage throughout Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg Monday night. It was the second severe storm to pass through the area in four days.

The National Weather Service issued forecasts yesterday predicting another storm would hit the area last night.

Dozens of intersections were flooded in the two communities as almost two inches of rain fell during the height of the storm.

Schaumburg police reported sighting a tornado near the village. But the funnel cloud did not touch down.

Lightning struck the home of James Crimmens, 186 Cooper Dr., Hoffman Estates, in two places during the storm, according to the Hoffman Fire Department.

The lightning did not cause a fire, but the interior of the home was reported to be extensively damaged, fire oficials said.

A COMMONWEALTH Edison spokesman said Hoffman Estates was one of the hardest hit communities in terms of power interuptions caused by the storm He said about 3,000 customers went without service for as much as three hours as crews worked to restore downed power lines.

Police were forced to reroute traffic around several intersections including Higgins and Roselle roads for about an hour when water rose to over a foot there.

Several areas in the Weathersfield subdivision in Schaumburg also experienced severe flooding as a result of the storm.

Power was knocked out at the Hoffman Estates Municipal Building. The police department there was forced to use portable radios when the main communications system was put out of commission.

No major fires were reported during the storm, but firefighters were dispatched to dozens of locations to guard against fire from sparks from downed power lines.

PACKING FOR A week of competition was a major chore for Holley Thorsen, who represents Hoffman Estates this week at the Miss Illinois pageant in Aurora.

Villages Studying Flood Insurance

Insurance may not dry up a flooded basement, but it is one step more and more villages are considering to cut down on water damage.

Arlington Heights and Palatine already have been approved for special reduced rate flood insurance sponsored by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

But a spokesman for State Farm Insurance Co., which is the designated underwriter for flood insurance policies in Illinois, said yesterday that only five persons in Arlington Heights and two in Palatine have taken advantage of the flood protection.

Officials in at least four other villages say they are considering applying for the insurance and the Village of Wheeling has an application pending.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said yesterday that the city is looking into the HUD-administered insurance and is also studying alternate ways to provide flood protection, including the possibility that the city itself would make flood coverage available to residents.

Under the HUD plan, residents of a city or village which has been approved, can buy flood insurance through their local insurance brokers.

COVERAGE IS extended to existing residential and small business structures.

Single family homeowners can insure their dwelling for up to $17,500 and the contents to $5,000 against flood damages. Rates range from 40 to 60 cents per $100 coverage.

Meyer said Rolling Meadows is "looking into the program and evaluating it" and he said a decision on whether to apply will probably be made next month.

Buffalo Grove, Mount Prospect and Hoffman Estates are also looking at the HUD program. In Schaumburg a resolution to apply for the insurance is currently being prepared and flood plain maps for submission to Washington, D.C. also are being drawn up.

Part of the requirements for approval by HUD is that the municipality agree to adopt land use and control measures that will minimize flood threats.

"We define flood as the general inundation of an area," said the State Farm spokesman in Bloomington. "Water coming in through a backed up sewer or sump pump drain wouldn't count. But if the water is pouring in through the basement window the insurance would cover the losses."

HUD designates a different insurance company to underwrite the flood policies in each state, the spokesman said. Even though State Farm is the designated company in Illinois, any licensed [illegible] can sell the flood insurance.

Holley's Ready For Miss Illinois Pageant

Village Beauty Doesn't Feel 'Exploited'

by MARY HUTCHINGS

A girl who used to think of herself as the "ugly duckling type" is now the poised and pretty representative of Hoffman Estates at the Miss Illinois Pageant this week.

Holley Thorsen, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sigwal Thorsen, 322 E. Weathersfield, Schaumburg, has reigned as Miss Hoffman Estates for a year.

This week's Aurora preliminary to the Miss America Pageant is the culmination of that year, much of it spent in preparing her talent number and selecting the "right" clothes for the contest.

Holly, who describes herself as a "ham" who "likes to perform," will sing "Without You" from "My Fair Lady" for her talent presentation tomorrow night.

HER YEAR as the village's reigning beauty, she feels, was "a great learning experience. I think I learned a lot about becoming a poised woman."

"I wish I'd had more experience in dealing with older people when I entered," she said, "but you could always need more experience in getting along with people."

Perhaps most difficult for her was "learning to express an opinion without offending anyone," she said. So now she tries to answer all questions — especially those important ones in the judges' interviews — "very tactfully."

It's important, too, to be honest, she said, and she plans to "just be myself" during the week of competition. Even though she agrees with the women's liberation movement in supporting equal pay for equal work, she says, "I like to feel feminine. I like having doors opened for me, but I don't want to be giddy or stupid."

The Miss America Pageant has been criticized by women's libbers for exploiting women, but Holley says the contest "is not designed to suppress women or force them into being sex symbols. If it were based totally on sex, they wouldn't have talent, a judge's interview or

Betty Crocker Award Winner

Miss Shelly Cole, a Hoffman Estates resident and a senior at Conant High School, was chosen as the school's Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow for 1972.

To receive the award, a charm from General Mills, Miss Cole took a written knowledge and attitude examination at the school. She now is eligible for state and national honors.

The state winner will receive a $1,500 college scholarship, and her school will receive a set of Encyclopedia Britannica. A $500 scholarship will be presented to the second place state winner. State winners also will receive an educational tour of Colonial Williamsburg, Va., and Washington, D.C., culminating in announcement of the national winner.

Miss Cole plans to major in education. At Conant, she has served as a student council representative and a member of German club and modern dance club.

Middleton Guilty On Theft Charge

Dr. James Middleton of Des Plaines, convicted earlier this year of deviate sexual assault and of federal explosives and firearms violations, was found guilty yesterday on theft charges in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County circuit Court.

Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters fined Middleton $100 and ordered him to pay $25 in court costs.

The trial had been continued 10 times since Middleton's arrest on the theft charge Sept. 28 of last year. Judge Peters denied two dismissal motions by Middleton, who claimed his arrest was not carried out properly and asked the prosecution to produce the stolen lumber in court.

Middleton was nabbed by Patrolman John Meese after a witness called police to report someone was stealing lumber from a construction site on Mount Prospect Road in Des Plaines.

THE WITNESS, Jerry Zygomaizz, 1510 Mount Prospect Road, testified he saw a man in front of his home remove planks of lumber from the construction area on Mount Prospect Road just north of Dover Drive, and place the lumber in an auto trailer. Zygomaizz, however, told Judge Peters he could not identify the man. Mount Prospect Road in front of Zygomaizz' house, was closed to traffic at the time of Middleton's arrest.

Meese testified after receiving the call that he headed northbound on Mount Prospect Road from Oakton Street and observed an auto pulling a trailer of lumber southbound on the closed section of Mount Prospect Road.

Meese said because of a three foot wide ditch in the road between his squad car and the auto, he had to get out of the squad and motion the southbound auto to stop. Meese said the auto stopped about 50 feet away. As he approached the vehicle, a man, who he identified as Middleton, got out of the car and started pulling the lumber out of the trailer.

Middleton, who acted as his own attorney yesterday, said he did take the lumber and 20 steel rods but argued he wanted to use it to place over the ditch in order to drive his car across it.

Middleton said his auto's headlights were turned off when he stopped, about 8 p.m. because he did not want oncoming traffic detouring around the construction area to be "blinded."

Meese testified it would have been easier for Middleton to leave the area by backing up than by crossing the ditch on planks. He added he saw Middleton back up his trailer two or three times that same day in front of Middleton's office, 969 Elmhurst Road.

Middleton contended he could not maneuver his trailer in such a small area and said he was in the area because he inadvertantly took a wrong turn somewhere.

The total cost of the eight stolen pieces of lumber and the 20 steel rods was estimated to be about $150.

Middleton was found guilty on March 14 of possessing and manufactuing explosive devices in his office. The federal charges stemmed from a series of raids at his Chicago apartment and Des Plaines office in December, 1970 and February,1971.

On Feb. 3, he was convicted of drugging and then sexually assaulting a former woman patient, Feb. 7, 1970, in his office. He has been sentenced in both the state and federal charges, but is free on bond pending appeals in both cases.

Two Young Des Plaines Women Found Murdered

The decomposed bofies of two young Des Plaines women, both apparent murder victims, have been found in the back seat of a car on a lonely country road near Galesburg, Mich.

The women were identified as Claudia Bedstrup, 19, and Linda Clark, 19, both of 9020 Embassy Ln. The girls had been reported missing July 9 to Cook County Sheriff's Police after leaving this area July 5 to visit Miss Clark's brother in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Kalamazoo ounty Sheriff Kirby Mason yesterday said their deaths were definitely homicide, and at one point refused to comment on reports that ropes were found around the necks of the girls and that their hands were tied.

The bodies reportedly were discovered under a blanket in the back seat of the auto Monday by two motorcyclists. The bodies were taken to a Kalamazoo funeral home where an autopsy was conducted by Dr. Robert Jenke.

Boman reportedly died from strangulation. X-rays earlier had failed to turn up any signs of bullet wounds or broken bones.

"WE HAVE a homicide on our hands and until the investigation is put together, I can't tell you much more for the time being," Sheriff Kirby said.

Miss Bidstrup was identified as the daughter of Richard Bidstrup, a Chicago policeman. Miss Clark was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Clark, 3538 N. Olcott, Chicago.

The women, classmates at Steinmetz High School in Chicago, reportedly worked as secretaries and shared the Embassy Lane apartment. Their bodies were found in a small foreign car registered to Miss Clark's father.

The FBI reportedly has joined Michigan, Chicago and Cook County police in the murder investigation.

PANTOMIME IS ONE way to learn how to communicate in speech class, as this group of incoming freshmen at Palatine High School are finding out. The students are in a program to help them build up their reading, writing and speech skills before entering high school. The summer program is being held both at Palatine and Conant high schools.

Pantomine Volleyball Games Help

Program Improves Communication

by WANDALYN RICE

Sometimes a volleyball game in pantomine is more than fun — it is a way to improve communications skills.

And the volleyball game, along with other pantomime exercises, are part of a program for a group of students who will be freshmen at Dist. 211 Palatine and Fremd high schools this fall. The program is designed to help them succeed once they start high school.

"Most of these students would be placed in remedial classes because of their low test scores," Lee Mulcrone, leader of the group of teachers working on the program, explained. Some of them will improve enough over the summer to be placed in a regular class instead."

About 70 students are in the program this summer at Palatine and there is a similar program at Conant High School for students who will be attending Conant and Schaumburg high schools in the fall, Mulcrone said.

"We mainly try to help them improve basic skills," Mulcrone said. "They have a tremendous range of abilities and some are weaker in one area than in another."

THE TEAM of teachers divided the students into four small groups and each works in an area of specialty. Mulrone helps the students with their writing; Bonnie Grabenkort works with literature; Pat Mulrone helps them with reading, and Anne Ollman gives them exercises in speech — where the students may find themselves playing pantomime volleyball to learn about nonverbal communication.

By the time a similar prgram last year ended, Mulcrone said, half of the students who would have been placed in remedial classes were in regular classes and "all of them performed adequately that year.

For many of the students, the four-hour class days seem to be no problem and several said they liked the idea of getting an early start on high school. "I've learned a lot more here than I did in regular school," Marcy Mattenson said.

Others agreed they especially liked the reading and speech classes. "Literature isn't too bad," one boy admitted. "Sometimes I get tired of reading so much, but it isn't too bad."

The only big headache the students could point to in the class was one common to other summer school students. "You have to get up too early," Todd Darling said. "I have to get up at six in the morning to catch the bus."

even evening gown."

The purpose of the bathing suit portion of the competition, she feels, is "to see how well you can carry yourself in an embarrassing situation."

A SOPHOMORE at Western Illinois University, Holley is majoring in music education. "The fine arts should be an important part of everyone's education, to be well-rounded," she said.

Music for her is a "good release" because "externally I'm a nervous person," she said.

Holley is engaged to her high school boyfriend, Wally Setlock, also a sophomore at Western. Though they have no plans at the moment, she doesn't feel she's too young to get married. "I'm sure, and I know where I'm going," she said.

Holley will appear in bathing suit competition Wednesday night and will perform her talent number for the judges Thursday night. Friday she will have a personal interview with the judges and will wear her green chiffon formal in the evenng gown competition.

Ogilvie To Sign Pact For Salt Creek Plan Soon

The Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee has received assurances that Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie will sign the multi-million-dollar Upper Salt Creek Watershed Project agreement.

Margaret Reimer, committee member, said Tuesday she had been contacted by Ron Michaelson, aide to the governor, who said she "could be assured that the governor will sign the agreement."

Mrs. Reimer also said State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, told her the governor had said he definitely would sign the agreement.

Michaelson said that the signing will take place in two or three weeks. The governor is hoping to sign the agreement at a ceremony somewhere in the Northwest suburbs since the agreement will only affect this area.

ONCE THE governor has signed the agreement, the Cook County Forest Preserve District must also approve the plan. Tom Hamilton, chairman of the committee, said he expects the forest preserve district to approve the plan. "The forest preserve district was waiting to see what the governor was going to do," said Hamilton.

After getting approval from the governor and the forest preserve district, the plans will be sent to Washington for congressional approval. The plan will have to be approved by the Public Works Subcommittee of Congress and will then be added to the U.S. Soil Conservation budget, said Hamilton.

The delay in getting state approval prevented the steering committee from submitting the plan for this year's budget. The plan will have to be made part of the fiscal year 1974 budget, which means that construction can not start until July, 1973, at the earliest.

If the plan is approved by Congress, then $12 million in federal funds will be added to the $6.4 million in local and $5.6 million of state funds.

THE PLAN includes construction of a dam across Salt Water Creek, forming a 600-acre lake in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve.

The plan is designed to prevent flooding along the Salt Creek; create a water recreational site; give rainwater a chance to soak into the ground, restore the watertable, and give wildlife a source of water.

Hamilton said a report on the conservation and ecological effects of the plans was made. The report was submitted to and approved by the U.S. Conservation Service.

Hamilton said that some channel work will have to be done on the creek. Areas will have to be widened where the creek was narrowed by developments.

A reforesting program already has begun in the area that will border the lake.

Numerous local government agencies already have approved the plan, including the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District, Metropolitan Sanitary District, Cook County Board, the municipalities of Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows and Palatine, and the park districts of Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Salt Creek.

Youth, 19, Arrested In Extortion Plot On Mayor

A 19-year-old youth has been arrested and charged with phoning in threats to police that he would kill Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel unless paid $10,000.

Scott Hagen, 19, of 428 Radcliff Dr., Des Plaines, was charged with intimidation after he reportedly admitted making the six threatening calls last Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Hagen reportedly told police he called in the threats to look important in front of his friends. He said he got the idea of the extortion plot from the movie "Fuzz," according to police.

Hagen first became a suspect Saturday when Sgt. Gary Vande Vusse monitored the sixth telephoned threat in the police communications room. Vande Vusse believed at that time the voice was similar to Hagen's.

HAGEN HAD been in the station earlier Saturday to report a man offered him 25 cents on Mannheim Road to call police and threaten the mayor's life. Hagen also stated the man threatened to harm him if he didn't call. Later, after Hagen was arrested, he admitted the incident never happened, police said.

Acting on Vande Vusse's suspicions, Det. Robert Zeimet phoned Hagen Sunday to discuss the alledged Mannheim Road incident. Since all outgoing and incoming calls on the police emergency phone lines are recorded, police determined the voice of the person calling in the threats and Hagen's voice were the same after comparing tapes.

Vande Vusse told the Herald the voice tones and speech characteristics of the caller and Hagen seemed similar after he heard the last threatening call.

Police immediately put a 24-hour body-Thursday at 6:45 p.m. The caller at that time, they said, requested $10,000 be paid him or he would take the mayor's life. He told police others were working with him and said he would call back later.

Police immediately put a 24-hour bodguard on Behrel after receiving the call. call.

A second call came in 40 minutes later. The caller said, "I want $10,000 or I kill the mayor," according to police.

LATER THAT night, a third call came in and the caller said, "Put the money in a kid's lunch box in fives, tens and twenties."

He told Patrolman Mike Albrecht to put the money in front of a tree at Rand Park, 2025 Miner St., Des Plaines. At this time the caller added, "there is a man out here. He threatened to kill me if I didn't call. He's coming now. Please hurry." The caller then gave police a name and address that later proved to be fictitious.

The fourth call came at 3:03 p.m. Saturday. "I want the money by next Friday or the mayor goes. That young kid gave you some information. He's going to get it. Don't try and protect him because I'm going to get him. I know where he lives and he's going to get killed," police said the caller told them.

The fifth call came in at 5:15 p.m. Saturday and the caller told police again he wanted the money at Rand Park.

The sixth and final call came at 10:46 p.m. Saturday and the caller repeated his threat against Hagen for giving the police information.

IT WAS after this call that Vande Vusse became suspicious of Hagen because of the similarity in the two voices.

Behrel said yesterday he was very "upset" about the situation.

"It was nice to know the police were there," Behrel said. "I feel sorry for the young man. Even if he'd seen the motion picture, I know he didn't know the serious implications of the threats," he said.

Behrel said he talked to Hagen for 15 minutes after the youth confessed.

Hagen was released on $3,000 bond and scheduled to appear in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Aug. 10 at 9:30 a.m.

Controversy Rages On I. Q. Tests

by DUSTON HARVEY

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — American blacks score an average 15 points lower than whites on intelligence tests.

Why?

This question — with its enormous social and political implications — has revived a long-simmering scientific controversy over the roles of heredity and environment in determining intelligence and has intensified the debate over the value and fairness of I.Q. tests.

Is has pushed the dispute out of the staid pages of scientific journals into courtrooms, legislative halls and the often violent world of radical politics.

The racial aspects of the scientific controversy were sparked by two men — Arthur R. Jensen, an educational psychologist at the University of California at Berkeley, and William B. Shockley, a Nobel Prize winning engineer at Stanford University.

Jensen argued in a lengthy article three years ago that two-thirds of average I.Q. differences are genetically caused and that the "preponderance of evidence" indicates the same is true of black-white differences.

SHOCKLEY, WHO HAD been trying for several years to have the National Academy of Sciences investigate the dangers of "downbreeding" because of disproportionate childbearing among slum blacks, incorporated Jensen's work into his own theories that nature has "color-coded" men. He has promulgated them since with evangelistic fervor.

The majority of geneticists, psychologists and educational experts don't agree with the Jensen-Shockley racial conclusions — arguing that their thesis ignores the cultural, social and economic inequalities between black and white environments and contending that man's limited knowledge of human genetics and the learning process makes the question unanswerable.

Jensen and Shockley have been labeled "irresponsible" by some critics, "racists" by others, and this year they became the chief targets of a militant wing of the radical Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

Their speeches and classes have been repeatedly disrupted. Personal threats against Jensen forced the university to assign him bodyguards. Shockley's classes have been invaded by white-sheeted protesters and he has been burned in effigy.

Both men also have been taken to task by the authors of about 90 per cent of the scientific papers written in response to Jensen's original piece in the Harvard Educational Review.

The central piece in the argument in Jensen's 1969 article, "How Much Can We Boost IQ and Scholastic Achievement?"

HIS ANSWER WAS: Not much. He based his conclusions on complex statistical analyses of I.Q. variations among 122 pairs of identical twins reared apart and among other kinship groups as well as on his own lab work on intelligence testing.

"Intelligence, like electricity, is easier to measure than define," Jensen said. "But it is as real as atoms, genes or electromagnetic fields."

He contended that psychologists and educational experts had uncritically accepted a strictly environmental "deprivation theory" and taken an "ostrich-like" stance about recent biological findings that showed the importance of heredity in determining I.Q.

Using test date from kinship studies done among white European and North American populations by other researchers, Jensen calculated the "heritability" of intelligence was about 80 per cent.

When "heritability," a statistical term, was translated into I.Q. figures, Jensen concluded that heredity is twice as important as environment in determining intelligence differences.

His findings applied only to white North Americans and Europeans, and Nathaniel Gage, director of Stanford's Center for Research and Development in Teaching, challenged his analysis of the 122 identical twins reared apart. Gage said the I.Q. correlations are high because the twins' "different environments" weren't much different, while those few twins reared in very different environments have a much lower heritability. Jensen termed Gage's work "very misleading" and insisted the most reliable I.Q. heritability figures range from 70 to 80 per cent. Other estimates range as low as 45 per cent.

HOW DOES THIS effect the 15-point difference between the mean scores of American blacks and whites on I. Q. tests?

Jensen cited two studies, one published and one not, on the heritability of I.Q. among blacks which have been made since his article was published. They showed, he said, that there was also a large genetic component in intelligence among blacks.

The high heritability in intelligence within the two races increases the likelihood there is a high heritability in the differences between races, he said.

It makes a very reasonable hypothesis," he says. "It's extrememly rare and improbable in the animal and plant world to find within-group heritabilities where you don't have between-group genetic differences.

"It's on that basis largely that I think it's a very reasonable hypothesis that racial groups differ genetically.

Jensen's assumption that high in-group heritabilities make likely high between-group heritabilities has been attacked by a multitude of critics.

"We know from animal studies, we know from human studies, that a heritability estimate has very limited applications," says Seymour Kessler, a behavioral geneticist at Stanford. "It only has validity for the specific population in which those measurements were taken and only at the time they were taken..

"You can't utilize that heritability estimate as if it were a God-given absolute quantity," he adds. "It has its limitations. You cannot take that estimate derived from white twin studies and apply it to explain the differences between average I.Q. between races. It's a simply invalid procedure."

Sandra Scarr-Salapatek of the Institute of Child Development at the University of Minnesota uses an agricultural example to explain why she believes Jensen's assumption is scientifically invalid.

"DRAW TWO RANDOM samples of seeds from the same genetically heterogeneous mixed population," she says. "plant one sample in uniformly good conditions, the other in uniformly poor conditions.

"The average height differences between the populations of plants will be entirely environmental, although the individual differences in height within each sample will be entirely genetic."

Jensen readily concedes that high heritability within both races won't prove there is a genetic basis for their average I.Q. test differences. But it is grounds he says, for "a very reasonable and likely hypothesis" that differences in racial gene pools are involved.

The seed example given by Scarr-Salapatek translates directly into a debate on the environments of blacks in the United States.

Jensen argues that the black-white differences persist even between children in the same socio-economic class, as defined in terms of schooling, occupation, income and similar factors. American Indians, who have lower scores on a dozen socioeconomic measurements, do better than blacks in average I.Q. test scores, he says.

HE CONCEDES extremely deprived children do not realize their full genetic potential, but those he says, are only a minute portion of the population.

The environmentalists who oppose Jensen point to child-rearing practices, language differences, cultural differences that affect the relevance of home experiences to academic aptitudes and the greater proportion of lower socioeconomic blacks.

"The generally lower scores of black children can be fit adequately to the environmental disadvantage hypothesis, with the additional interpretation of cultural differences to account for the lower scores of black children at each social class level," says Scarr-Salapatek, who conducted a massive heritability study on black and white school children in Philadelphia.

"If all black children are disadvantaged to an unknown degree by being reared as blacks in a white-dominated society, and no white children are so disadvantaged, it is impossible to estimate genetic and environmental variances between the races."

James F. Crow, a University of Wisconsin geneticist, put it this way: "It can be argued that being white or being black in our society changes on or more aspects of the environment so importantly as to account for the differences."

While Jensen has been the focal point of the scientific debate, the outspoken Shockley has been the public spokesman for their point of view.

Shockley, who won his Nobel Prize in physics in 1958 as co-inventor of the transistor, began voicing his concern in 1965 that disproportionate reproduction levels at the top and bottom of the socioeconomic scale threaten the future of mankind.

He has tried unsuccessfully for several years to have the National Academy of Sciences investigate his fears of a dysgenic trend — a "down-breeding" of the nation's population.

FROM HIS OWN and other studies on humans and animals, Shockley has concluded that man is "color-coded" — a catchword which has dramatized the controversy and made him a repeated target of campus protest both at Stanford and on speaking engagements.

"At the acme of unfairness," Shockley says, "are features of racial difference that my own research inescapably leads me to conclude exist: Nature has color-coded groups of individuals so that statistically reliable predictions of their adaptability to intellectually rewarding and effective lives can easily be made and profitably be used by the pragmatic man in the street."

Shockley will even put it more bluntly than that:

"I'm trying to encapsulate that the American businessman can make estimates which are profitable to him on the basis of simply judging color. I'm suggesting that."

Does that mean the color of job applicants?

"That's right."

The Nobel Prize winner has also enraged his critics with a series of attention-getting suggestions about how to prevent the dysgenics disaster he sees ahead.

Two years ago, he suggested a massive program of artificial insemination to improve human intelligence. He said the offspring of mentally deficient women could be raised 25 I.Q. points by artificial insemination.

More recently, he has suggested a "voluntary sterilization bonus" in which non-taxpayers would be paid $1,000 for each point their I.Q. was below 100, if they would be sterilized.

SHOCKLEY CALLS these suggestions "thinking exercises," insisting he is "not advocating it, I'm advocating thinking about it."

Kessler, the Stanford geneticist, calls these "thinking exercises ' a form of "guerilla warfare" by Shockley, who "has gone on one head trip after another on what kind of eugenics methods to use."

Gage has branded them "a cloak for irresponsibility" and "a mass insult to people with I.Q.s below 100 — half the population — who are being told they are genetically undesirable.

Other faculty members at Stanford have barraged Shockley with criticism in recent weeks, culminating in the rejection of his proposal for a graduate course on his theories.

Graduate Dean Lincoln Moses refused to authorize the non-credit course on grounds "your expertise for teaching this course is subject to doubts" and "the level of objectivity of the proposed course is at least as troubling."

The entire debate rests on the results of I.Q. tests — and they, too, are the subject of controversy.

Questions include what they measure, whether they are culturally biased in favor of middle-class whites, and their relevance to future attainments.

There is no agreement at all on what "intelligence" is. As Jensen notes, it is almost impossible to define.At the turn of the century, experts found evidence for seven or eight separate factors of intelligence. Some now find signs of more than 100. Geneticists believe it is influenced by the combined action of many genes.

But I.Q. tests ignore that question by ranking individuals without knowing precisely what is being measured.

Some psychologists believe it is innate reasoning power; others contend it merely shows what has been learned. Or, as David McClelland, a Harvard psychologist puts it, "there is no evidence that I.Q. tests measure anything but the ability to take other I.Q. tests."

And so the argument goes.

Public TV

by Ed Landwehr

That Public Access Television in New York isn't panning out so well. Two cable companies servicing 80,000 subscribers made two channels available to the public on a 24-hour basis. The idea is a community forum to which all groups can express ideas and information they believe is important.

A lot of problems have come up such as restraints on indecency and obscenity, techniques for effective use and controls, originating points, minimum fees and libel rules. After six months and about 400 hours of availability, only 40 hours have been used. You can imagine that the audience wouldn't be very big, either.

We've noticed at Landwehr's Home Appliances that our customers mostly want entertainment on their TV set. Many of the phone calls we get specify that they don't want to miss certain shows or movies, and we better get over and fix it fast. And if you don't catch us already in bed, the phone number 255-0700 will get you fast TV maintenance. Try us.

Hurry over to 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, and see some fine displays of nationally-advertised brands of televisions, radios and stereos.

Just Politics

by Bob Lahey

Maine Township Democratic committeeman Nicholas B. Blase is among those who see a threat to strengthening of "new politics reforms" in the party, due to the "old political muscle" used by the Singer-Jackson coalition in unseating Mayor Daley at last week's national convention.

Blase issued a statement in which he said the "new politics" as practiced at the convention "makes me deeply concerned about the future strength and unity" of the movement.

Blase charged that Singer and Jackson demonstrated more concern for personal gain than for a November election victory. "What they did accomplish, in fact, was to make George McGovern's task of wooing moderates and conservatives in

Rep. Philip Crane

Illinois and throughout the country . . . a more difficult undertaking than he already had," he said.

PLANS FOR THE annual Republican Workshop Conference of the 12th Congressional District Republican Organization have been announced by Carl R. Hansen, chairman and GOP committeeman of Elk Grove Township.

Tentatively expected as the featured speaker is Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, according to Schaumburg Township committeeman Donald L. Totten of Hoffman Estates, chairman of the conference.

Among six U. S. congressmen expected at the conference is Rep. Leslie C. Arends of Melvin (Ford County), Republican whip and senior member of the House Armed Services Committee. Arends will serve on a panel which will include Rep. Philip M. Crane of Mount Prospect and Rep. Edward J. Derwinski of Chicago.

Arends will be called upon for the featured address if Goldwater is unable to attend, Totten said.

The conference is scheduled for 1 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 13, at the Maitre D' Restaurant, Oakton and Dempster streets.

A SUBURBAN Democratic candidate for the state Senate has taken exception to the speculation in the press over whether control of the Cook County

Abner Mikva

Democratic party will remain with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, or fall to insurgents William Singer and Jessie Jackson.

Thomas W. Flynn of Niles, objects that 500,000 Cook County independents and independent Democrats are being ignored in the discussions of the future of the party.

Flynn maintains that these independents are beholden to neither the "city hall Democrats" of Mayor Daley nor the "high-rise Democrats" of Singer and Jackson.

The candidate called for a meeting of all township committeemen, officeholders and candidates to discuss the role of suburban Democrats. He suggested that Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase, state Rep. Eugenia Chapman and U. S. Rep. Abner Mikva join with assistant state's attorney Daniel Coman and state representatives Anthony Scariano and Leland Rayson to organize the meeting.

Flynn proposed that representatives be elected at the meeting to confer with Daley and with presidential nominee Sen. George McGovern on the suburban role.

YOUNG SUPPORTERS of U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, are making available their Volkswagen float displayed in July 4 parades in Prospect Heights and Mount Prospect, for use throughout the 12th Congressional District, in which Crane is seeking re-election.

Lake County members of the Youth for Crane Committee will use the float in a parade in Lake Forest Aug. 2.

The youthful Crane backers also have planned a Car Rally, in co-sponsorship with the Elk Grove Township Teen-Age Republicans, to be held Aug. 12, and a District Ice Cream Social for Aug. 27.

Members of the committee's executive board are Chip Howes of Palatine, chairman; Joel Soderberg of Rolling Meadows, first vice chairman; Mark Strauch of Mount Prospect, second vice chairman; Clara Costello of Mount Prospect, secretary; and Peter Mazzenga of Mount Prospect, treasurer.

U. S. REP. ABNER J. Mikva, D-2nd, candidate for re-election to Congress in the new 10th District, was honored recently by the Japanese American Citizens League.

Mikva was presented with a citation recognizing his work with the league in achieving repeal of a provision of the Internal Security Act which gave the President authority to establish internment camps in the time of national emergency.

Another Democrat, state Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, received a plaque for "distinguished and devoted service" from the Illinois High School and College Driver Education Association recently.

Mrs. Chapman sponsored two bills in the last session of the legislature which will benefit driver education. One permits summer school teachers of driver education to claim Social Security benefits; the other allows students to practice driving when accompanied by a parent or guardian with one year's driving experience.

Richard J. Daley

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI)—"It wasn't Shakespeare, that's for sure," said actress Shirley MacLaine after George McGovern's acceptance speech. "But," she added, "we don't need Shakespeare right now."

To the contrary. With the party split the way it is, the Democrats need Shakespeare more than ever.

I've been pouring over the Immortal Bard's works to determine his views on party harminy and I am convinced he has the right formula for reuniting the Democrats. As we shall see in the following interview:

Q—MR. SHAKESPEARE, what advice would you give Senator McGovern as he goes about trying to heal the wounds opened at Miami Beach?

A—"Be moderate. Be moderate. Cherish those hearts that hate thee. In they right hand carry gentle peace, to silence envious tongues. Patch grief with proverbs. Pray, and sing, and tell old tales, and laugh at gilded butterflies."

Q—"I'M SURE George Meany and mayor Daley would love that sir, particularly the part about butterflies. But do you think a reconciliation is possible?

A—"Some griefs are med'cinable. What private griefs they have, alas, I know not."

Q—WHAT HAPPENED to Meany, Daley and other members of the Old Guard at the convention?

A—"Let us sit upon the ground and tell sad stories of the death of kings. Machinations, hollowness, treachery and all ruinous disorders. Paddling palms and pinching fingers."

Q—DO YOU think the McGovern delegates were ingrates not to seat Daley after all he had done for the party?

A—"The painful warrior famoused for fight, after a thousand victories, once foil'd, is from the books of honour razed."

Q—HOW IS Daley reacting to the setback?

A—"He receives comfort like cold porridge. A man whom fortune hath cruelly scratched. O! the fierce wretchedness that glory brings us. Is't possible that so short a time can alter the condition of a man?"

Q—WHY WAS the Old Guard so strongly opposed to McGovern?

—A "He capers, he dances, he has the eyes of youth. Crabbed age and youth cannot live together."

Q—WHAT SHOULD McGovern tell his young campaign workers to help beat Nixon in November?

A—"Rid them wash their faces, and keep their teeth clean."

Education Today

Supt. Martwick's 'Contribution' Is Unclear

by BETSY BROOKER

Besides providing copy for muckraker Mike Royko, what does Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick do?

Officially his office, known as the Education Service Region of Cook County, is responsible for teacher certification, life safety inspection and high school degree equivalency examinations, among other things. In reality, it is not quite clear what his contribution is.

His reputation as a political hack for Mayor Richard Daley and provider of patronage jobs has set him up as a bad joke among suburban school officials.

Fiascos such as the hiring of Louis P. Farina, ex-commissioner of the Chicago Department of Streets, as executive director of the county education office, have done little to boost Martwick's image. Comments from Farina such as, "I became familiar with data processing in evaluating parking tickets," have been laughed off as another chapter in Martwick's follies.

There also was the hiring of William Vernon, a Methodist minister and public school gym teacher, as assistant superintendent for research and statistics. The former candidate for Martwick's seat drew public criticism when it was discovered he lacked the two years of supervisory experience required to run for the superintendency.

THE UPSHOT OF Martwick's "bad publicity" is a sense of cynicism on the part of school officials under his authority. They simply don't respect the man.

After a few personal encounters with the superintendent, I can't defend him. At press conferences, he is usually shielded by an array of brain power careful to cue him on what to say. He appears uninformed on the meaning or background on specific issues, such as his suit challenging the present system of school finance.

After giving Martwick a year's grace, school officials are moving from exasperation to plotting strategy to get free of Martwick's dominion. They are realistic enough to know they can't unseat the superintendent until his term expires in 1975.

The alternative is to create a service region separate from the Cook County region. The advantage, say some school officials, will be independence and control of county tax dollars.

At this point, Dist. 54 is leading a move to create a new service region. At a meeting earlier this month, school board members agreed to seek legislation that would allow residents by referendum to separate from the county region. Other school boards in the area have not formally endorsed the move but have expressed an interest in gaining independence.

REPORTEDLY, there are also rumblings from the North Shore and Park Ridge about a split from Martwick's office.

A major argument of proponents of the split is that the Cook County region, serving more than 5 million persons, is the largest in the state. A separate suburban district would serve 2 million in a 30 township area.

In order to strengthen some of the mini-regions, the state has mandated that all regions contain at least 16,000 persons by April 1, 1973. By 1977, the regions must contain at least 33,000.

The 33,000 figure looks absurd compared with the present 5 million in Cook County. The suburban officials have a strong argument. If the legislature is going to be concerned about regions that are too small, then it should also look at the other end of the scale.

In addition, there is merit to the contention that the problems of Chicago overshadow suburban needs in the eyes of the county superintendent. Division of the mammoth region between the city and suburbs would give local districts a new superintendent, hopefully more qualified and more in tune with suburban systems.

AN ATTEMPT WAS made last year to pass a bill, HB 2128, that would have authorized areas of 300,000 or more to form their own regions. The bill passed the House but languished in the Senate.

If suburban school officials are really serious about their desire to break from Martwick, they should first unite and then take action. Bills can pass the legislature if the support is strong enough . . . but grumbling is not enough.

A success in the legislature could pull education on the county level out of the political arena and give local educators the services they want.

Political Convention A Nightmare

by LESTER KINSOLVING

MIAMI BEACH — This writer has covered several dozen national religious conventions — and now, in this resort city, his first national political convention.

This experience, at the Democratic National Convention, gives me new hope and perspective for organized religion. For not even the wildest or most bizarre and disorganized religious conclave I have ever covered could approximate the weird, wild wonderment of the Democratic Party's quadrennial excursion.

By way of comparison, the Southern Baptist Convention is annually comprised of up to 15,000 fiercely independent and occasionally uproarious delegates. But compared to the 3,000-member Democratic Convention, the Baptist meeting is a model of efficiency and decorum.

To begin with, Americans who watch the Democratic (and, no doubt, the GOP) Convention on TV see a partially distorted picture. The incredible boredom of many of the speeches is blotted out in favor of chummy interviews with celebrities, or titillating prognostications by the star anchorman of the networks. And the TV microphones are so attuned as to blot out the almost constant noise of the convention floor, with which all but the most celebrated or effective speakers (a distinct minority) are obliged to contend.

A CONSTANT and often thunderous rumble emanates from the floor, despite a repeated slamming of the giant gavel and ardent beseechings for order from Convention Chairman Larry O'Brien (whose uniquely low-key and intelligent speech was one of the convention's highlights).

Imagine a kaleidoscope of (1) a gigantic grammar school playground at recess time (2) the New York Stock Exchange on the afternoon of Oct. 26, 1929, and (3) an Ohio State-Michigan football game with both teams and both marching bands all competing simultaneously on the same turf.

The convention delegates constantly clog the aisles for purposes of wheeling, dealing, greeting of old and new acquaintances — and above all, for the sweet opportunity of getting their faces and opinions on national television.

And the TV people, instead of interviewing at the side or in the rear, constitute the convention's most obstinate and insufferable clog.

The view and hearing of entire delegations is blotted out by this wall of jabbering humanity. In considering the fact that these delegates are charged with the awesome responsibility of picking a possible president of the United States, as well as an entire political program, it may be reasonably wondered just why such pandemonium is tolerated, without brisk action by sergeants at arms as efficient as the Secret Service.

Particularly is this travesty appalling in the light of some 300 foreign newsmen present to cover and invariably to wonder in astonishment.

ANOTHER HORROR is the recurrent roll calls, which are good (that is hardly the word) for an hour or more of time consumption. With the several miles of electronic and telephone equipment installed, an electric scoreboard would seem to be an obvious improvement.

Such a time saving device would, however, deny the various state chairmen their moments of national fame, during which several of them invariably precede their vote reports with gratuitous cornball plugs, such as: "The Great State of . . . " (Occasionally, however, this results in some comic relief, as for example when at 2:30 a.m. one state chairman announced: "Madame Chairman, the state of North Carilina casts 58 votes for eggs, bacon and a tub of grits!")

The electric scoreboard would also eliminate last minute deals and frequent bandwagons — as well as a certain drama.

One time saving improvement (in addition to elimination of so many songs) would be a welcome confining of prayers to an invocation at the opening session and a benediction at the adjournment, rather than trying to cover all major denominations by opening and closing all sessions with prayer.

For the cause of religion hardly appears edified by the present system, nor do many delegates appear spiritually uplifted by holy injections at 6:30 a.m., after an exhausting night of political hassling. Moreover, few of the clergy selected, such as Miami's Catholic Archbishop, Coleman Carroll, appear able to resist the temptation of giving a nationally televised speech instead of a prayer; although Miami's Episcopal Bishop James Duncan attained something of a record by confining himself to 52 seconds and giving a bona fide prayer.

Tryouts July 27 For Models Of Back To School Clothes

Tryouts for models for Woodfield's back to school fashion show will be held July 27 in the shopping center's Schaumburg Room.

Three leading fashion experts will judge the competition, which will be open for youngsters 3 to 12 years old, from 9:30 to noon and for girls 13 to 21 from 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Tryouts will be conducted on a first come, first served basis. There is no need to preregister, and those selected will model new school fashions at Woodfield Aug. 10 and 11 in the Greek Amphitheater of the Grand Court.

Priscilla Henricks, merchandising editor for Harper's Bazaar, will coordinate and commentate the show in addition to serving on the panel of judges.

Lilian Gholson, director of Oak Park's Patricia Stevens School and Mercedes Evans, a free-lance model who just completed a term of office as president of the Mannequins Guild for Chicago's top fashion models, will complete the panel.

Early Jewish Childhood Demonstration Set

The Board of Jewish Education of Metropolitan Chicago has announced the opening of a demonstration school of early childhood Jewish education at Congregation Beth Tikvah in Hoffman Estates.

The program, which includes Jewish content integrated into the total environment, will run from September through June, 1973. Children aged 3-4½ may attend a five-day schedule or a three-day schedule, 9:30 a.m. to noon.

For further information or an application form, write Mrs. M. Ginsburg, Board of Jewish Education, 72 East 11th St., Chicago or call HA 7-5570. Application brochures are also available at the Beth Tikvah office, 529-4545.

Yearly tuition for the five-day program is $420 and for three day, $290.

Four Years After Transplant

Has Faith In A New Heart

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Louis B. Russell Jr., who has lived longer than anyone in the world with a transplanted heart, is counting on being around at least 22 more years.

Russell, 47, and Indianapolis school teacher whose strenuous daily schedule would exhaust many normal persons, entertains a growing optimism about his future because his doctors do.

"Not long ago," Russell said in an interview, "I was up and running around for 22 hours one day and the electrocardiograph pattern slipped a little and my local doctor was concerned.

"They had asked me to follow a slower than normal pace after I left the hospital because they wanted to see how long a person could live with another's heart in him.

"BUT I talked to the cardiologist at Medical College of Virginia at Richmond — Eric Kemp — and he told me he wasn't concerned because the heart had gone 22 hours at a stretch because he now thinks it can go 22 years."

If his new heart does last that long, and Russell says he feels quite strongly it will, he will observe his 69th birthday anniversary "and that's pretty close to a normal life span for anyone."

"I don't just live day to day, I look forward to tomorrow," Russell said recently as he headed toward the fourth anniversary of his transplant surgery Aug. 24, 1968. He said not only Kemp but other doctors associated with his medically historic case are now fairly confident he will live a normal life span.

If so, it will be one of the few "normal" things about Russell.

The heart now in his body — and apparently being accepted by the body — is that of a 17-year-old Providence Forge, Va., youth who was killed when he stepped out of a restaurant during a ghetto gunfight.

THE HEART was donated by the youth's parents and transplanted to Russell in the hospital at Richmond. Russell still keeps in touch with the donor's parents and says he has accepted the youth's birthday — Aug. 13 — as one of three special days in the year. The other two are his own birthday in April and the Aug. 23 anniversary of his operation.

Russell goes to a doctor here twice a week now — down from the three times a week routine he followed for two years — and returns each January and July to Richmond for a complete set of tests. He still takes medication to help the body accept the heart and admits he has trouble holding his weight down because the medication causes the body to retain fluids.

"But I'm still highly optimistic that the heart won't give me any more trouble," he said.

"There is every indication that things are progressing normally. In fact, there seem to be advancements in the acceptance of it. There's evidence in the electrocardiographs, the doctors tell me, that things are getting better."

The problem encountered by most heart transplants is that the new heart — living tissue from a foreign body — tends to trigger the body's defense mechanisms, which try to fight it off. If the body's defenses are successful, they cause the patient to die of heart failure.

IT HAS BEEN more than three years since Russell had "body rejection episodes." Dr. John D. Graham, one of the cardiologists who now sees Russell, says there is no apparent reason that Russell has continued to fare so well.

"It's strictly a matter of luck and good tissue matching and the medications that have kept him from rejecting it," he said.

Russell believes that God has quite a bit to do with it also. He said now that God has let him live, he feels like doing more to help people.

Russell is on the board of directors and fund raising chairman for the Indiana State Heart Association. He also serves as a lay chaplain for the Indianapolis police department.

"I don't really do much with the police department, but it gives me a chance to work with young people in the streets," he said. "I have a good rapport with the kids and they see me working with policemen and this helps the policemen establish contact with them."

Russell was a candidate for the Indianapolis City Council last fall, but lost.

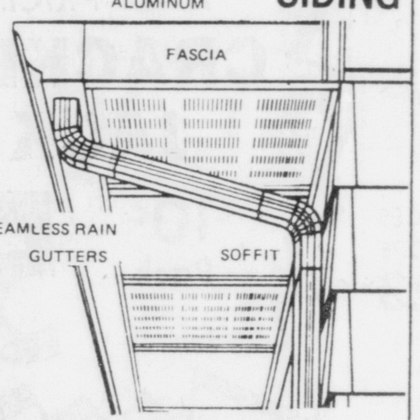

FOR A MAN who has been told to take it easy, Russell does a lot of traveling, mostly for heart associations and other charities. Recent visits include stops in Charlestown, W.Va., Birmingham, Ala., Madison, Wis., and Boston.

Russell says he enjoys having the opportunity to talk to people and has spoken at several high school commencements around the state in evenings recently after teaching during the day.

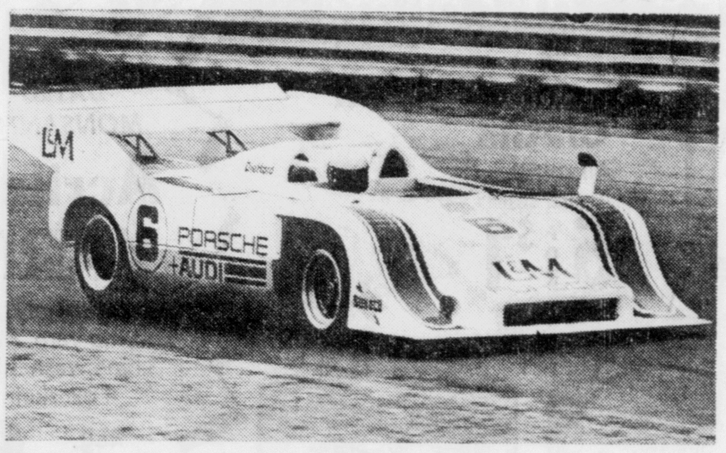

Thoughts of death rarely cross his mind, although he realizes death could come suddenly for him.

"I'm like Dr. Martin Luther King, on that," Russell said. "Dr. King once said 'No man is truly free until he is free of the fear of death.' "

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have a hernia problem. Actually I had a double operation in 1945. One side held but the other didn't. I was operated on again in 1962 and it didn't hold either. In fact the stitches let go shortly after I was out of the hospital. The doctor told me I was allergic to catgut so I decided to leave the hernia as it was and just wear a belt. In 1967 I had a prostate operation and I was found to be a borderline diabetic. The doctor told me to watch my diet, but since I was a hard worker I didn't bother much and as a result I had a heart attack in 1969. Now I have no choice but to watch my diet.

After the heart attack I was told that I should have the hernia repaired, but to wait one year. I have let it go but I'm now at retirement age. I would like to have this hernia operated on since I'm tired of wearing a belt and just can't see myself walking around the rest of my life with this sac hanging down, plus the fact that it does hurt at times. On the other hand, I am afraid. If I do have the operation, is there any way to have it reinforced so it would hold? Is there any danger because of my heart condition? How do I go about finding a specialist in this field? The medical bureau is not of much help.

Dear Reader — Unless a complete medical examination proves that you have some underlying serious medical problem, I am all for you having your hernia repaired. The truth is that they can cause trouble, and the older you get the more difficult it will be for you to have surgery. So you're really not gaining much at this point. Since you've had surgery before, you already know that the operation really isn't that difficult. It's really minor surgery (at least for everyone except the patient). The real problem is being sure that you do get a successful repair, and you've already had some difficulties along those lines.

Many people who have had heart attacks and have had a reasonable recovery have actually undergone major surgery without any real difficulty. Of course, your surgeon would like to know about your attack because it may have some influence on what type of anesthetic he might choose. Your best way to find a competent surgeon who performs these types of operations is to ask your family doctor to refer you to the nearest university medical center. This would insure you that your operation would be at least supervised by top-notch specialists in the field. I would think that your family doctor could arrange this referral for you.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

In match point duplicate bridge you frequently disdain safety plays because they are too likely to cost you an important overtrick. In rubber bridge the contract trick is so important that winning players try to find the safest way to make it.

This requires a slight change in the meaning of H in the code word ARCH from "How can I make my contract?" to "How can I be sure to make my contract?"

South overlooked this question entirely. West cashed the king of clubs and shifted to a diamond. South went up with dummy's ace and promptly led a trump to his king.

West showed out and South suddenly realized that he was going to have to lose three more tricks. He did try to save his contract by leading his queen of spades, but West was smart enough to duck and eventually South had to lose another club, spade and a trump and the good will of his partner.

South had the insurance play at his disposal. He should have played the jack of trumps instead of the king. This would have cost him a trick if West had held the queen, but it would not have been the contract trick.

Just give West the queen. He takes it happily and makes the best lead of another diamond. South ruffs; plays a high trump to pull the last one out against him and leads a club. West takes his ace, but can't keep South from getting to dummy with the eight of trumps for two spade discards on the queen and jack of clubs.

Repeal Restriction On Farmer Cooper's

The Mount Prospect Board of Appeals approved Wednesday a request by the village board to repeal an ordinance placing restrictions on use of the Farmer Cooper restaurant site, 303 Kensington Rd.

As a result, the building now is available to be resold or reused without previous controls restricting such things as sales of liquor, along with size and height of the building.

The original owner of the restaurant was denied a liquor license in 1967 based on old zoning regulations.

James Christy, its current owner, is presently seeking a liquor license from the village.

Democrats Have 'New Openness'

What the Democrats achieved in Miami Beach may prove to be something of value. If the price they end up paying is setbacks in the November election, the party, and the voters, may still have gotten a bargain.

For the lesson of Miami Beach is that political machines can be beaten.

This should be an encouragement for voters of either party who are not satisfied with things as they are to work for change. Or for those who feel that present values are threatened to work for their defense.

The lesson seems particularly pertinent to suburban Democratic voters, many of whom have long felt that the domination of the Chicago organization has made political activity futile.

To be sure, the convention also proved that political victories are not achieved by accident. Most of the issues in the convention were decided in favor of the supporters of Sen. George McGovern.

These decisions were achieved as the result of dedicated work and superb organization. The work was done by amateurs. The organization was done by experts.

However the Democratic party may have altered itself, it has not affected the basic formulas of politics. Elections will continue to be won by those who work hardest and who control the situation.

But the party appears to have opened the doors for wider participation by a greater number of people, and to have enlarged the opportunities for newcomers to effect change within the system.

The task of the party now is to enlarge upon the gains it has made for encouraging those who have been on the outside to come through those doors. There are weaknesses in the rules by which the Democrats operated their convention, as was demonstrated in the bitter fights which ensued.

To achieve the promise of its reform attempts, the party must refine its newly found rules and continue work toward a truly open party.

If it succeeds in doing so, its Republican counterpart surely will be compelled to compete for the new participants in American politics, and the result could be a step away from machine politics and toward truly democratic government.

What must be avoided in this new movement in the Democratic party is the formation of a new machine to replace the old. The best way to avoid that is for the inactive voter to take advantage of the new role opening for him.

It's About Time

What's in a second?

Enough to bring all the nations of the world into agreement for a change, which is a very great deal indeed.

The agreement was on a 61-second minute, the first such in all of recorded time. In case you missed it, the long count occurred simultaneously around the world at times ranging from 2 p.m. June 30 in Hawaii to 1 a.m. July 1 in London and was necessary to bring the earth back into the same time frequency as the universe.

Earth time is based on the revolution of the planet, which has a tendency to wobble a bit. Universal time, for scientific purposes, is based on the radiation of an atom of cesium, which never, never varies — 9,192,631,770 oscillations per second. The discrepancy compounded over the years could have had inconvenient consequences, such as sunsets at noon.

Thus the worldwide decision to add an extra second to ordinary earth time won't have any effect on the boiling time of an egg or make anyone any earlier, or later, in getting to the office.

But it is at least comforting to know that such really cosmic matters can be settled by the nations with such simplicity and that we earthlings, with all our mundane problems of war, poverty and pollution are once again synchronized with the universe.

It's Missing A Cell

Chicago and the Northwest suburbs aren't the only areas where crime is on the upswing.

Take Shabbona, Illinois, for example. It's a farming community on U.S. 30 somewhere in the middle of De Kalb County many miles west of Chicago.

Somebody recently stole Shabbona's portable jail.

The portable jail had been installed in the middle of town for Shabbona's centennial celebration. It was there to hold local citizens found guilty by a kangaroo court of "various crimes."

Someone at night made off with the jail. Town officials are mildly irked; they say they'd like the jail returned "so justice can prevail."

Indeed, justice must prevail in Shabbona. In the interest of good government, we ask whomever stole the Shabbona jail to return it — immediately.

'Serious Splits In Democrat Ranks'

The 1972 Democratic convention ended six days ago, but the appraisals — pro and con — of what happened linger on.

However, we've heard enough of what the Democrats (sometimes impolitely) think of each other. So, we've invited a leading Republican to examine the implications of the convention.

He's Richard A. Cowen, Wheeling Twp. GOP committeeman and deputy county chairman.

Next month, we'll reverse the process and invite a leading Democrat to examine and dissect the Republican convention. And as always we invite you the reader to get into the fracas by writing to us about what the "Public's Issue" commentator had to say.

by RICHARD A. COWEN

Commenting on the recent Democratic convention is like stepping into the middle of someone else's bitter family fight. The participants know they have real problems, but resent an "outsider" suggesting that anything except harmony and love prevail. Recognizing this handicap, and before discussing the questions of party reform, I would offer the following over-all general observations:

Serious and deep splits exist in Democratic ranks. These splits will be brought home from Miami, and cannot be "papered over" thru talk of reform or calls for party unity. They go too deep. They involve two gut aspects of intra-party dynamics — ideology and party control. The convention was a confrontation between liberal Democrats on the one hand and the more moderate and conservative Democrats on the other. The liberals clearly prevailed. There was simultaneously a confrontation between a coalition of basically the young and minority groups against the Democratic "establishment" which included numerous elected party and public officials. The coalition won.

The 1964 and 1968 Presidential elections illustrate that either party has great difficulty winning the Presidency after a divisive convention. The Democrats in 1972 start with a house bitterly divided against itself.

—Exhaustive media coverage created two over-all impressions. I stress the word "impressions" because the facts are admittedly in dispute:

A. The failure to seat the Daley delegation is interpreted — rightly or wrongly — as a denial of the voting rights of hundreds of thousands of people. This issue will not fade, especially in light of the California result where the elected delegates were seated. Two factors may explain the Illinois result. The Singer people were for McGovern, the Daley delegates were not. Secondly, the delegates, in an emotional response, thought they were getting even with Daley for the 1968 mess in Chicago by kicking him out.

B. A wide range of Democrats and independents felt the convention and the delegates were not at all representative of them. The impression created was of a convention controlled by the young, the more militant feminists, and a coalition of minority groups.

— The McGovern campaign was well organized, well disciplined and in full control from the start. Votes could be sacrificed (creating an appearance of weakness) in the South Carolina challenge yet regained and even increased in the California challenge. Even though the mood of the delegates seemed to favor abortion, and a minimum guaranteed annual income, the McGovern forces concluded these issues were too hot to handle and they were defeated on the floor.

— The platform plank supporting busing could in itself cost McGovern the election. People — regardless of party affiliation — are simply not for busing.

— Contrary to some expectations, the convention was orderly. The Republicans may well face more demonstrations and provocations than did the Democrats.

— The rather nonsensical and sometimes almost foolish goings-on in connection with the Vice Presidential nominations gained nothing and lost McGovern a golden opportunity to deliver his acceptance speech to a huge, prime time audience. This was a serious mistake. An acceptance speech sets the tone for the campaign, can be expected to reach a maximum audience, and is an opportunity that once lost is not easily regained.

— Assuming McGovern loses, Sen. Kennedy stands ready to pick up all the pieces. Few if any of the delegates would object.

No consideration of the Democrats' convention could be complete without at least brief mention of party reform. Reform of the process for nominating a President has been the subject of constant debate since 1968. I believe the Republican Party reformed itself long ago, and has been a party of the Open Door for a long time. I presume my Democratic counterparts might contest these propositions, but now is not the time for such debate. The subject is the Democratic Party reforms.

I believe that increasing the size of the delegations is a wise approach. In this respect I will urge the Republican Party to follow the Democrats' lead. Our rules limiting the number of delegates to two per district is unduly narrow. However, the Democrat's insistence on representation in proportion to population make-up comes perilously close to a "quota" system. A quota system can only have undesirable long run results.

Eliminating the manufactured hoop-la and staged demonstrations when a person is nominated for President was a step forward. Yet all that was gained here was lost when it came time to nominate the Vice President.

The most glaring defect in the Democrats reform efforts was in permitting the unconstitutional "unit rule" concept to be transposed from caucuses as in 1968 to primary elections as in California. There simply is no justification for such a "winner take all" primary which denies representation to all but the winning candidate. Had Sen. Humphrey challenged this system before the primary rather than after he had lost, the result could well have been different.

Richard A. Cowen

(Again, I must note parenthetically that the Republican Party eliminated all vestiges of unit rule many years ago).

On balance, the reforms certainly "opened up" the Democratic Party. Contrary to 1968, this was not a "brokered" convention though it certainly was a controlled one. The aspects of a "quota" system, and the California-type primary still foil true and abiding reform.

In summary, I believe Sen. McGovern's campaign has been hurt by the convention but he will still be a tough opponent. The Republicans can ill afford any sense of complacency. An all out effort must be waged to insure victory. I also add a warning to my party for the period beyond November 7. We must redouble our efforts to spread our message to every person, and to involve everyone regardless of race, color, creed, age, sex, religion or national origin in the Republican process.

If we do not, then while Sen. McGovern may lose the battle, the coalition he has formed may last to win the political wars that are yet to come.

Phil Crane's Book 'Hard To Find'

A neighbor of mine recently gave me a paperback book. Its title is: "The Democrat's Dilemma." It was written in 1964 by Philip M. Crane; which I assume was long before he had considered becoming a U. S. congressman. In any case, I found Mr. Crane's book to be extremely informative as regards a great many aspects of our national political scene. In fact I found it so fascinating that I took it with me to read on the train during a shopping trip to Chicago. Unfortnately, I inadvertently left the book on the train. And since I had not finished reading it I stopped in at Kroch's and Brentano's in downtown Chicago to purchase another. To my surprise I found that they do not even stock the book. And neither, for that matter, do two other bookstores in the Loop at which I inquired.

After returning home I discovered that Mr. Crane's book is not sold at any of the outlets in the local area either, including Randhurst and Woodfield shopping centers. In one bookstore at which I inquired the proprietor obligingly looked up the title in one of his catalogs. He assured me that the book is still in print, and that the publisher is the Henry Regnery Company, located at 114 West Illinois Street, Chicago.

Since I could not ask my neighbor where she obtained the book (she is now on an extended vacation) I wrote to the Regnery Company, and they were kind enough to send me a complimentary copy along with their apology for its scarcity in retail outlets. They suggested that inasmuch as book distributors do not distribute the book and since newspaper book sections do not review it — the best way to make it available would be to request that the Chicago Tribune or one of the other metropolitan newspapers review it in their book section. Also they suggested that book dealers could order it direct from the publisher.

I would suggest to our readers that no matter how they obtain "Democrat's Dilemma," they should make it a point to read it; especially since this is an election year. I feel certain that they will find it as entertaining and informative as I did!

Daley Treatment Deplored

I'd like to take this opportunity to thank the Democratic National Convention for securing the reelection of President Nixon, by their shabby treatment of the Daley delegates of Chicago.

Say what you will about the mayor of Chicago, he has always been a true Democrat supporting his party through thick and thin and not deserving of such vindictive treatment at the hands of the youth movement now afflicting the Dems.

I thought the Democratic Party was the "party of the people." If this is the way they treat old political bosses, think how the social security set will be treated if these youth oriented radicals get into office?

Ah, youth! That's all we hear these days. The candidates dye their hair or let it grow fuller hoping to appear mod and capture that elusive youth vote. These visual effects are like stage illusions. When are politicians going to stop taking the voters for a bunch of hicks?

We all have a habit of growing older and we get there a lot sooner than we think we will. But along the way let's not destroy the older generation or the younger generation, because we don't seem to understand their odd ways. We all have to live on this planet, at present there is no alternative.

Word-A-Day

Business Today

by JOHN M. WILLIAMS

NEW YORK (UPI)—The brassiere is back.

Regardless of what your eye may tell you during a stroll along Fifth Avenue on a given summer day, most likely there's a brassiere under that clingy sweater or body shirt and, to the bra manufacturers, there lies the commercial future.

The "natural" look has boosted the bra business, which, according to best estimates, amount to about $700 million a year. For a while, when the women libbers were clamoring for equality and taking part in bra-burning demonstrations, the industry got the jitters.

All that's changed, according to Mercy Dobell, editor of Body Fashions Magazine, who says "the bra business is looking up tremendously." Miss Dobell attributes the success to high fashion and women's desire to look natural.

"However," she told UPI, "today's fashions don't want that saggy look. They require the softly shaped look, without a lot of ribs and seams."

WOMEN'S foundation wear long has been the subject of discussion, from the days of whalebone stays and tight-cinched waists to the liberated look of the late 60s. But, the bra manufacturers report, the birth control pill and ever-changing fashions brought about new dimensions to the industry.

A spokesman for Bali bras who said sales were "up significantly" added that a contributing factor was an increase in the average breast size. "The average bra cup used to be a 'B' but now it's more like a 'C'," the spokesman said. The "pill" had a lot to do with such growth, the spokesman added.

Martin Elkind, president of Lady Suzanne Foundations, a subsidiary of Duplan Corp., said his business was growing about $1 million a year. However, Elkind said, the styles have changed and "we've gone to a softer, more natural look."

While the brassiere business has improved, its sister, the girdle industry, has sagged. Again, industry spokesmen report, it is the desire for the natural look.

ACCORDING to Miss Dobell, the brassiere business now accounts for about 60 per cent of the $1.1 billion market in ladies' foundation garments while "girdle sales are down about 2.9 per cent." However, she said, some girdles have gone to the brief style with higher waist bands to accommodate changing fashion trends and sales have made a slight turnaround.

Fay Rosen of Maidenform, a leading bra company, contends the bra business is on a firm foundation. "The whole thing is based on stretch, freedom and comfort," Mrs. Rosen said.

Europe Maps New Monetary System

LONDON (UPI) — Western European finance ministers yesterday rounded out details of an eight-point blueprint for reform of the creaking world monetary system.

They planned to present it as a joint European contribution to worldwide money talks in Washington in September.

Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber said Monday the blueprint constituted the "fundamental objectives of a new world monetary system rather than rigid positions taken up in advance of the Washington talks."

He stressed that the ministers who agreed on it represented countries with a total population of 255 million and 40 per cent of world trade.

BARBER PRESIDED Monday at the opening session of a two-day meeting of finance ministers from the six present Common Market countries and the four that join next January — Britain, Ireland, Denmark and Norway.

Barber said the ministers also would review plans for economic and monetary union in the Common Market when its membership is increased to 10 in January.

The conference met against the background of a threatened new major dollar crisis with continued heavy selling of dollars in most money centers. Speculators turned their attack against the dollar as the next weakest currency after Britain "floated" the ailing pound June 23.

Conference sources said the dollar crisis was a major topic at sidelines talks between finance ministers, officials and central bankers, although it did not come up at the conference table.

Barber said the conference itself Monday dealt solely with world money reform.

THE EIGHT-POINT package agreed on Monday, Barber said, was designed to provide a more flexible international monetary system. He said it would be based on fixed currency parities that, however, would be subject to adjustment when necessary.

Although the dollar was not mentioned specifically, Barber's reference to fixed parities was taken by conference sources to mean the ministers wanted the dollar to become fully convertible again.

The eight-point blueprint, according to Barber, provided that:

—The new system should be based on fixed but adjustable currency parities.

—It should be designed to reestablish general convertability of currencies.

—It should provide for effective international regulation of the supply of money "liquidities" in the world.

—It should provide for securing the necessary adjustments in the balance of payments of participating countries.

—It should seek to cut down the effect of short term movements of capital which upset world monetary stability.

—It should conform to the principle of equal rights and obligations of all participating countries.

—It should take into account the interests of developing countries.

—It should make clear that such a system is in no way incompatible with progress towards economic and monetary union in Western Eupope.

Xerox Facilities In New Network

Xerox Reproduction Centers in Chicago and Des Plaines are among 17 such facilities in the country which are the key to a nationwide facsimile service providing two-way communication between Xerox Telecopier transceiver customers and non-users of the equipment.

Anyone with an installed Telecopier unit can send a facsimile message to one of the centers for pick up by the receiving party. Also, a message from a non-user to a user can be delivered to the center for direct transmission.

Telecopier transceivers are compact, desk-top devices that send and receive documents of all types over ordinary telephone lines at the rate of four minutes per 8½ by 11-inch page. Charges for the new service are $5 for the first page and $4 for each additional page of a message, plus long distance tolls.

Participating Xerox Reproduction Centers in this area are at 162 N. Franklin St., Chicago, and 2300 W. Devon Ave., Des Plaines.

Other sites forming the initial network are those in White Plains, Plainview and New York, N.Y.; Mountainside, N.J.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Detroit, Mich.; Washington, D.C.; Boston and Waltham, Mass.; Dallas (two) and Houston, Texas; Los Angeles, Long Beach and South San Francisco, Calif.

Personal Finance

by CARLTON SMITH

It's easy to avoid one of the commonest mistakes made in buying a house — a mistake that's sometimes impossible to correct, and almost always entails heavy expense.

Before rushing up to the house to look at what's inside, take a few minutes to look at it from a distance, and judge whether it's badly sited.

Especially in the case of new construction, you may assume that "raw" look is due to the absence of landscaping, and that you can get rid of it with a lawn, shrubs, hedges or other plantings. But it's frequently a fundamental misfit of the house to its site, and no amount of landscaping will eliminate the awkward look, or whatever it is that's wrong.

Architects and professional landscapers complain, almost without exception, that mass builders give little or no thought to the siting of a house, with the result that many houses lack the grace and attractiveness they could have, with proper attention to siting.

ONE OF THE main concerns of an architect is to work out an integrated relationship between the house and the land. The house "looks right" there, whether it seems to grow out of the land, seems to "float" above it, or relates to it in some other way.

When you're buying a mass builder's house, it's rare to find that he's given this kind of attention to siting, or any. Usually you'll have to decide whether the house can be made to "look right" — which generally will entail some grading, or a lot of grading — or whether it's a hopeless case, for which there's no remedy.

One of the commonest reasons for an awkward-looking house is too much exposed foundation. Entrances are perched an ungainly height above grade level. In some cases the problem can be solved with fill and grading. In others, the expense of removing or rebuilding steps and entrances may not make it feasible.

Buyers of such houses often assume that "plantings" around the exposed foundation will eliminate the awkward look. Generally, the more heavily you plant, the more isolated from its site the house will look.

ANOTHER COMMON problem of bad siting is the house that looks as if it's about to slip downhill, because of the way it's placed on a steep slope. Again, grading may solve the problem — if the surrounding terrain permits.

One of your requirements in a well-sited house should be level areas extending out from the entrances, affording you outside living area. And look for easy access to these living areas. A back or side door that takes you down a flight of steps and onto a driveway does not make for a graceful relationship with your yard or garden.

In general, split-levels won't be well sited on flat terrain. On sloping land, the ranch house or other one-level design will inevitably have one or more exposed foundation walls.

Landscaping alone, to say it again, is almost never a corrective for a basic siting problem. A critical examination from a distance — before you rush in to look at the bathrooms and closets — is the only way to determine whether the house has a problem, and whether it's correctable.

Ask The IRS

Q. Is it true that the Pay Board's exception for catch-up increases is scheduled to expire?

A. The catch-up exception expired June 30. However, for those appropriate employe units where average straight-time pay rates, including benefits such as vacation and overtime, is $3 per hour or less, the catch-up exception will expire Nov. 13.

Q. I understand that my landlord must determine the base rent for my apartment before increasing rent. How can I figure out the base rent on my own?

A. The base rent for a unit subject to a month-to-month (or less) lease before the freeze is the last rent paid for that unit before the freeze. For example, if you pay your rent on the first of each month, your base rent is your August, 1971 rent.

If you were on a lease for more than month-to-month on Aug. 14, 1971, your base rent is determined by one of the following ways:

—If you signed the lease between May 16 and Aug. 14, 1971 your base rent is the monthly rent called for in that lease.

—If you signed the lease on or before May 15, 1971, your base rent is the rent stated in the lease plus the average percentage increase charged by the landlord for other units having leases signed between July 16, 1971 and Aug. 14, 1971. If no leases were signed during this period, the landlord must use the leases signed during the preceding 30-day period, and if necessary leases signed in the 30-days prior to that.

—If no leases were signed in the 90 days before the freeze, your base rent is the rent for your unit in May 25, 1970, plus 5 per cent, or the rent immediately before Aug. 14, 1971 whichever is higher.

In most cases, if you are on a lease your rent may not be increased until the current lease expires.

Q. My landlord charges a fee for automobile parking spaces. Is this considered rent under stabilization regulations?

A. It is considered rent if the parking space is used in connection with your residence. If not so used, however, it is not considered rent. In the latter instance, this kind of activity would be considered a service and your landlord would be subject to the price controls on service industries, unless exempt from controls because of the small business exemption.

Government: Voter League Seeks 'Involvement'

by JEAN CAFARELLA

Time: Last Wednesday and Thursday.

Place: The meeting room at Clayton. House Motel, Wheeling.

Synopsis: State board members of six Leagues of Women Voters are meeting to discuss ways to involve voters in government. It is coffee break time, yet the state presidents keep right on talking, comparing each other's methods.

Characters: Illinois Pres. Alice Ihrig; Iowa Pres. Jean Lloyd-Jones; Michigan Pres. Beany Tomber; Minnesota Pres. Mary Ann McCoy; Wisconsin Pres. Carol Toussaint; Indiana Vice President Barbara Zimmer.

Illinois: You know, women are the must underused resource in this country, and there's so much we can do.

Minnesota: That's so true. We've been trying to get women to run for public office. In fact, we've had two women on our state board leave to run for the legislature.

Wisconsin: We tried getting people to run for office through a workshop we had in 1969. When 1970 came, hardly anybody ran. I think our timing was off; this year people would have been more interested.

Minnesota: And it's important to have women candidates for office, especially on issues like equal rights and abortion. We developed a kit on how to run for office, with a special section for women. A woman especially needs to be known in her community if she wants to be elected.

Iowa: We've been running a three-year pilot project on getting youth involved in local government. Most changes that youth want they can get at the local and state level. So we looked for the alienated youths, the unemployed, the minorities. The young Indians in Sioux City accomplished the most.

It didn't work too well, though. Seventy-five people came for the project and selected housing improvement, which was a surprise to us. But housing didn't unify them; some wanted better student housing, some pushed better ghetto housing, and some wanted low-income housing. And nobody really followed the program through.

Indiana: Our state league is having youth come for a weekend in September to learn how to be politically effective. We'll have politicians there who can tell the kids the best ways to go through channels.

Wisconsin: We did a survey on how local government is taught in the schools, and it's practically ignored. The teachers have no resources for information, and they do want it. We gave them some of the research and old clips we have from our projects.

Iowa: We sent our files to the University of Iowa, and it was just what they wanted. It's really good for political research and we put in records of all our legislators' correspondence.

Wisconsin: One of our research projects right now is tax reform and related to school financing. We've been looking at what other states are doing and we're trying for tax redistribution instead of property taxes. We've been most successful with getting other coalitions to join us.

Indiana: Our latest project is judicial reform. We want judges to be appointed rather than elected — it's more efficient. We did get an amendment on judge selection for the state supreme court.

Michigan: I think we had our biggest success with con-con. We worked to get a new constitution for six years, and they passed most of what we wanted.

Illinois: So did ours. I think we're working through the courts more now. At the moment we're working for child welfare, but we want to make structural changes rather than just get new legislators.

Michigan: Our league helped promote an environmental quality bill, and it's sort of becoming a model bill for the rest of the country. A private citizen can sue a company that's polluting the environment, even if he's not individually being hurt by the pollution. Before you had to show personal damage.

Illinois: We've had that written into law from the beginning.

Michigan: Well, we had to get it with a citizen's coalition.

Illinois: It seems the legislation that really bombs out is the stuff that's ahead of its time, like county home rule.

Michigan: Or if the issue is too complicated, like judicial selection.

Illinois: And most problems we work on are just the tip of the iceberg. We're not reaching the alienated and undereducated. You can build as many libraries as you want, but how do you get people to use them?

McGovern Adopts A New Image

Tune Is The Same, But Pitch Has Changed

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — When George McGovern first ran for president in 1968, he looked like he was on leave from a South Dakota dairy farm. He was short on hair, confidence and cool. He wore a green iridescent suit that cleverly turned colors in the sun. He hauled around a pair of enormous cuff links that an observer swore "dragged the ground." And he had this very difficult problem with his socks — they kept drooping under his high-flying trouser cuffs.

"People think I come across like a Sunday school teacher," he said at the time, bravely, "that I'm not an effective communicator. Well, I think the American people are tired of flash and charisma and show-business spectacles." He bent to pick up his socks. "I think truthfulness and trustworthiness are more important."

He won only 146½ votes at the Democratic convention.

So much for what's important in politics.

TODAY, FOUR YEARS and a hell of a lot of flash and show business later, George McGovern is clearly not going back to the farm. Gone is the iridescent suit. ("It's been donated to the Smithsonian," says a staffer), his hair curls over his ears, and he never takes a step without executive-length hose. Lights. Camera. Bring on the make-up man. Before every appearance, the new McGovern, 49, who used to be in the sainthood business but now is just a politician, checks his sun lamp tan, fluffs the bulk knot in his silk tie, winks at sidekicks like Shirley MacLaine (who just "loves" him) or her brother, Warren Beatty (who just "digs" him), and figures out exactly how truthful and trustworthy he can be for the particular audience.

George Stanley McGovern, the junior senator from South Dakota, is hardly ever mistaken for a Sunday schooler any more. He comes on instead like the fellow who would be Pope. The soft flat voice is still there, he is not yet able to conceal all his nervousness, he still lacks the confidence to deliver a good, gutty joke — but the time when Americans dismissed him as "that governor whatsisname" has ended. Says Lester Spielman, a McGovern aid: "I remember the day he talked to 3,000 Chicanos out in California. Well, none of them could speak English or understand what he was saying. But, by God, they nodded and smiled and cheered all the way through the speech. Now that's proof. He's got something now and all those people knew it."

WHAT McGOVERN has now is easily defined. He has the ear of the troubled public. And he got it, at least in part, by doing exactly what he once denounced — going slick.

Once the most earthy, the most specific and the most anti-political of all major candidates, he was also the most repetitive, uncharismatic and ignored. He entered the 1972 campaign (in January of 1971) announcing that he felt the country was "tired of the old rhetoric, the unmet promises, the image makers" — and everybody yawned.

So he shifted gears. He invented a new old rhetoric, spread unmeetable promises of his own ("$1,000 annually to every man, woman and child in the country"), and hired a whole staff of image makers. His TV schedule bloated. His interviews multiplied. His contributed income climbed from zero to, at last count, over $5 million.

Today, his campaign is indistinguishable from that of the other runners — chartered planes, furious tours of bluecollar districts, every hair in place, every word carefully chosen. And it has worked. Says a McGovern staff coordinator, Amanda Smith: "I talk now about when we win the nomination, rather than if."

BUT THE SUCCESS has had a price. Nobody knows how high. If George McGovern's stock is rising, and his socks are staying up, too, it's been at the expense of falling credibility. Months ago, the senator's campaign manager, Gary Hart, said that a good part of McGovern's strength "is in his image of honesty and consistency -- and he can't afford to lose that." There are those who now believe that he is losing it. Staffer Les Spielman, for example, frankly states: "I was more in agreement with George in New Hampshire than I am now." And one of the candidate's field workers put it more bluntly: "I still back McGvern, because he's still the best of the lot. But, wow, what's happened to him? He's ruined his whole thing."

McGovern's thing all along has been low-key radicalism, a quiet plea for the nation's revival. And to many of the candidate's long-standing (they say long-suffering) rooters — people between the ages of 15 and 30 — any deviation is a bad deviation. Says Doug Wilit, a college student from New York City who recently paid $5 to hear this hero speak: "Like, I remember when this guy would sit down with anybody and rap about real problems, about how crappy everything is.

"Now all you ever see him is on TV, saying nothing. The other night he was on and somebody asked him how fast he would change the country around if he's elected. Man, he just squirmed. He said — you know how politicians talk — he said that people had to remember the 'President couldn't change the country' or something, that Congress passed the laws. Well, like, what's he mean? He means: 'Don't worry middle America, I'm not the revolutionary you believe.' He means: 'Don't worry, everything's gonna still be crappy.' "

Indeed, candidate McGovern has changed the pitch of his campaign orchestration. He still talks about the need to get out of Vietnam, but now prefaces it with a conservative assurance that "I know this nation must be strong defensively and I know we must meet our commitments to other nations . . . "

He still is in favor of busing for the purpose of school integration, but explains his stand not so much on morality these days as on the rule of law: "I believe we should obey the Supreme Court decision on this matter."

HE STILL BELIEVES in the right of pregnant women to make their own decisions to have abortions, but says on the one hand that permitting legislation is a state rather than a federal matter, and on the other hand, "I'm not going to lose the presidency over the abortion issue."

He still believes in the redistribution of wealth, reduction of the national defense budget (by 40 per cent over three years), withdrawal of many armed forces from foreign bases — but, to be sure, assures one and all that, "If anybody has any better ideas, I'm open-minded, I'm willing to listen." Look, he reportededly assured critics at the recent governors' conference in Houston: "Congress will provide the balance against any of the programs I recommend."

None of this sidestepping, this hedging, is, of course, shameful. It is, in fact, political. "This is give and take," says McGovern. And as a liberal Democrat from a conservative Republican state, the senator has had to indulge all his public life. When South Dakotans objected to his early hard views on Vietnam, he was disposed to issue a statement that, "I'm against U. S. withdrawal from Vietnam."

DURING THE 1968 senatorial campaign, his liberal voting record in Congress slumped dramatically. When the first glimmerings of success began in this year's primaries, he told Playboy magazine that he would be "more circumspect about the kind of groups with whom I am associated," a kissing-off of the rabid radicals whom he once appreciatively courted.

Yet if politics is conciliation, is at times dirty, and if most professionals and most voters know and accept the realities of it, George McGovern has still shocked many by playing the game by the rules. He was, after all, the man who promised he was above such sport. "My greatest single asset is truth-telling," he said once. "I don't duck the issues and I'm not capable of deception." There are some who believe he still believes this. There are others who wonder with reason.

For this own part, George McGovern denies that he is something else in '72 than he was in '68. Speaking from the front seat of his plane recently, weary from 14 hours of campaigning he said that, "I don't want the presidency bad enough to change my ideals for it," and he said he would never deceive his supporters: "I will never let (my people) down, and I think they know that. They know that I will make reasonable modifications in my program, that I have to do this; this is the way it is. But they also know that I will never betray them on fundamental principles. They know I will end the war, if I'm elected, they know I will never sell out to greedy self-interest groups, they know I won't give in to the forces of bigotry."

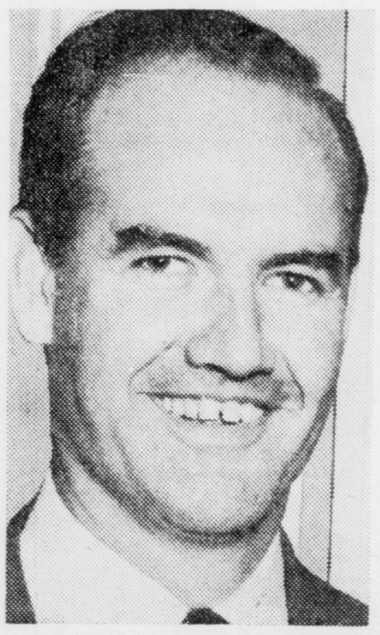

AND INDEED, SO far anyway, most of McGovern's people do still seem to know this. when he began the current campaign 18 months ago, he had six staff members. They are still with him, plus 100,000 volunteer workers all around the nation. Many of them work 15 hours a day, most for zero compensation, and all with evangelistic zeal.

Why? Because, says staffer Amanda Smith, "McGovern is decent, truly decent. I remember once he was attacked by a militant feminist. Instead of getting mad, instead of writing her off as a nut, he came to me and said, 'Amanda, what can we do about her problem?' " This is the real, the enduring George McGovern, says Smith. "The kind of man who listens, who is concerned, even when he's being attacked." Never mind his alterations, his new rhetoric she says, pancake make-up can't cover the basic McGovern good.

WHERE VOTERS can't come to registration, the League of Women Voters will come to them. Arlington Heights League in the past has used a Voteswagen to go to the people so they may register.

Region Delegates Agree

League Is Serious Business

by DOROTHY OLIVER

There were the usual anecdotes reaping laughter from the assembled woman's group, but instead of relating to a youngest son, oldest daughter or current husband, they concerned the length of a legislative session, the ability to make contact with a corporation president or the quandry of enticing a young prospective member.

There was the usual amount of small talk, but rather than centering on recipes, diapers or the golf league it involved local constituency, financial projects and pep core tours.

It was a serious session — and serious women were conducting it.

League of Women Voters state board members from a six-state region gathered last week for a two-day Mirwest joint state board meeting at the Clayton House Hotel, Wheeling. Represented were Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

THEY GATHERED to discuss interleague communication, membership recruitment, financing, legislative action, lobbying, and other topics.

Assembled were some of the top Leaguers from the area, women who are currently devoting large portions of their time to LWV — many who have done so for years.

"League of Women Voters is not just an organization . . . and it gets me angry when people talk of it in terms of unit meetings or study groups. To me it's a way of life. It has changed my whole life. It turns people into effective citizens — responsible citizens," proclaimed one delegate after a prolonged discussion of how to attract new members.

Her statement evoked smiles, nods and appreciative laughter from her peers. Yet minutes earlier another delegate suggested that in many instances, LWV scares prospective members off simply through its reputation.

"THE REPLY WE get from some prospective members is 'I'm not smart enough . . . I don't know enough.' I had a master's degree when I joined and I felt the same way," she said.

It boils down to an image dilemma. League is not "just an organization" when compared with other women's groups. Each year local leagues spend their time studying national issues such as environment, housing, the electoral college, Congress; state issues such as constitutional implementation, day care, election laws; county and local issues.

After intensive study the issues are voted on, a consensus is reached and the League moves into an action program of implementation. It is not uncommon for a state board to draft legislation, seek out sponsors, lobby in the legislature and move the bill into law.

To women such as Joann Miller, an Illinois state board officer from Northbrook, League means a time commitment of often more than 40 hours a week. This time commitment is a part of the League image.

MRS. MILLER sees involvement in League as a snowballing process. New members need not give huge amounts of time. But as they become interested in a study, knowledgeable about their government and continually exposed to the U.S. political system, their desire to become involved grows.

"It is almost impossible for a woman to not become politically involved after a long League membership," she said. "League is one of the best training grounds for women who enter politics . . . Ask any political candidate about the political effectiveness of their League campaign workers. League encourages its members to work for a party or a candidate or hold office themselves."

College women, golden agers, young mothers, working women, mature women — the league is after all of them. The delegates to the Wheeling meeting agreed they are willing to be flexible, to offer night meetings, to send less"time committed" members to talk to interested women and prove that League doesn't have to be a full-time job. They are interested in having husbands and boy friends become associate, non-voting members this year with the hope that in future years the national league will grant men full membership.

AT THE SAME TIME they are recruiting women who seek more than "just an organization," they will be working diligently to bring in funds, educate the public, register voters, monitor meetings of all governmental bodies, draft legislation, lobby for the passage of bills they favor and for the defeat of those they oppose, meet legislators and candidates, expand their own base of knowledge, and work to make every citizen an effective citizen.

Those are serious tasks for women who themselves reflect exactly the women (and men) they are trying to attract. For they, too, are working women, young women, mature women, golden agers, college women. And they are independents, Republicans, Democrats. They are the politically oriented and the not so politically oriented.

They are the League of Women Voters.

VOTER REGISTRATION is an especially important project of the League of Women Voters in an election year. Des Plaines League helped register new voters at the village hall prior to the spring primary and will be at it again for the fall election.

Speaking Of...

Men's Liberation

by KAY MARSH

Who's distressed, oppressed and frequently discriminated against because of sex?

Men, that's who, at least according to a growing number of males speaking out these days for Men's Liberation. Now, as we note the anniversary of the first Women's Rights Convention (held July 19, 1848, in Seneca Falls, N.Y.), might be the time to consider equal rights for men.

Some males wail, for instance, that they were denied voting membership in the League of Women Voters. Others assert that the draft is unconstitutional because it excludes women. But the major battleground, as you might expect, is in the field of jobs.

Occupationally speaking, women break new barriers every day. We now have women riding race horses, directing air traffic, driving trailer trucks and even stringing telephone lines. Yet only recently did men win their fight to be hired as telephone operators, and male airline stewards are overwhelmingly outnumbered by stewardesses. Private duty male nurses, unlike their feminine counterparts, are usually assigned only to male patients. The same is true of babysitters, though as far as I know nobody has filed suit about it. True, we have as yet no woman President, Supreme Court justice or astronaut, but then no man has been U.S. treasurer since 1949.

JOB RIGHTS, men claim, tend to favor women. In only a few instances have special women's "protective" labor laws as to maximum hours of work, overtime, rest periods, etc., been extended to men. Men are also challenging rules that bar them from wearing long hair on the job, arguing that no such requirements exist for women.

Pension plans, men say, are especially discriminatory. A recent suit against a telephone company, for example, claims that women can retire at 55; men have to wait until they're 60. Things are worse for Indiana teachers: females can voluntarily quit at 62, whereas males have to wait until they're 65. And only this month could Atlanta's female city employes name their working spouses as pension beneficiaries. In another case, a company's profit-sharing plan allowed women to draw their shares any time they quit, but men had to be at least 50 or disabled. (The U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission determined that the plan was discriminatory. But not even the EEOC has achieved maternity leaves for men.)

AN ORGANIZATION called ADAM (The American Divorce Association for Men) claims that existing divorce laws are obsolete and usually interpreted to the wife's advantage. ADAM provides divorce counseling, directs members to lawyers who will protect their constitutional rights and goes into court with class action suits to challenge what it considers discriminatory divorce laws. Some men, for instance, would welcome child custody, child support and/or alimony. (Only seven states now allow husbands alimony, and that rarely. They are Oklahoma, Ohio, California, Illinois, Massachusetts, Oregon and North Dakota.)

When death do them part a widow with minor children may have several options under Social Security, whereas the widower of a covered woman worker usually has limited benefits. Florida grants widows, but now widowers, a $500 property tax exemption. (A circuit court judge ruled in April that the law is unconstitutional because it discriminates against men.)

THE PRESS distresses the Society for Emancipation of the American Male, which filed a complaint against The New York Times in January. The Times, SEAM claims, violates the Civil Rights Act of 1968 and discriminates against men by having a women's department, but not a men's department. SEAM's president, by the way, recently published a book: "The Feminine Mistake," by Cal Samra. Another book advocating men's liberation is Shepherd Mead's "Free the Male Man!" Mead urges all men to join MOUSE (Men's Organization to Uplift and Support Each Other), demanding such items as earlier retirement and sexual equality for men.

Man as sex object took what some consider a great step forward in that male nude centerfold in April Cosmopolitan. But probably the ultimate in sexual equality occurred late in April, when police reported that three young women allegedly tried to rape a male student at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle Campus.

AND SO MEN battle bravely on, outnumbered by women by a margin of nearly 5½ million. What they need, obviously, is equal rights. Maybe even the new era of the Equal Rights Amendment that Congress passed in March and sent to the states for ratification. It provides that "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex." And that could mean equal rights for men as well as women.

The Price Of Milk

Cut Cost Aim Off Target?

by MONICA WILCH

Both the Illinois Attorney General and the U.S. Justice Department may be barking up the wrong tree in their attempts to save consumers some money on the price of milk.

The federal government and the state of Illinois brought suits against dairy associations in February and March of this year, charging them with monopolistic practices.

Atty. Gen. William Scott said in the Illinois suit that four dairy marketing organizations plus the Associated Milk Dealers of Greater Chicago control 95 per cent of the milk entering the Chicago area and add $12 million annually to the price of bottled milk for Chicago area consumers.

One of these organizations, the Associated Milk Producers, Inc. (AMPI), was also the target of a suit by the U.S. Justice Department, which charged that the huge dairy cooperative has controlled milk sales in a 14-state area (including Illinois) since 1967 by eliminating competition of independent milk producers.

But the coops mainly furnish milk to handlers, which is the point at which they allegedly are making illegal profit, and that profit, when broken down, amounts to something like two cents per gallon.

Thus, if the suits were successful, the dairy owner might be able to buy milk two cents cheaper, and he might pass along at most, a half-cent saving per gallon to consumers.

ACCORDING TO Lloyd Meyer of Meyer's Dairy in Arlington Heights, milk carries a very small markup and thus would not be likely to go down in price. He said milk prices are "lower now than they were 10 years ago," and noted that "many dairies are going out of business" because they are not making sufficient profit.

Hollis Hatfield, dairy specialist for the American Farm Bureau Federation, agreed that the suits, if successful, probably "will not make as much difference in price as people may think." He pointed to factors "above and beyond the coops — like supply and demand," which he said influence the price consumers pay, whereas the dealings between coops and handlers do not affect customers.

Possibly a more significant effect of the suits will be their effect on the milk producers' power in the federal structure if the coops are broken up. According to Hatfield, the producers would be weakened as far as dealing with the U.S. Department of Agriculture to get favorable federal pricing.

If the milk producers could not exert as much pressure through the coops on USDA — which sets milk prices — then those prices could conceivably be lowered through public hearings.

The prices established by USDA probably affect the consumer more than any price manipulations of the coops; moreover, it is to USDA that the coops owe their existence and their power.

USDA ADMINISTERS what are called the federal milk marketing orders, established by the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1933. These orders fix minimum prices for bulk milk sales from farmers to processors. By 1968 there were 74 regions under federal price control and 90 per cent of all milk was regulated by either federal or state price controls. Some of these regions have since been consolidated, so that they now number 62, covering about half the country geographically.

These regions are controlled by the dairy cooperatives, which, according to USDA, "have been merging and federating at a rapid pace." The agency noted that soon "one or two major cooperatives may well cover all the U.S. east of the Rockies."

The original purpose of federal pricing, according to USDA, was to stabilize a market that would otherwise "fluctuate violently," and to assure consumers "an adequate supply of pure and wholesome milk." Since milk is perishable and production varies seasonally, USDA says, pricing is necessary to prevent surpluses.

HOWEVER, the actual results of the pricing system, according to reports by the University of Illinois Agriculture Department, have been increased production — often in excess of demand — and prices up to 20 cents per half gallon higher than competitive level, coupled with a decrease in consumption of milk.

One Federal Trade Commission economist estimated in 1970 that consumers were paying as much as 30 per cent — or $3 billion annually — more for milk than they should be if prices were competitive.

While such an estimate is dependent upon many complicated variables, it is a simple fact that from 1960 to 1970, consumption of dairy products in general dropped 13.9 per cent, and consumption of milk, specifically, dropped 18 per cent.

The latter development is a serious one, since milk is one of the most nutritionally complete foods available and is the mainstay of the diets of babies and young children. Moreover, according to Antitrust Law and Economic Review, much of the decline reflects the inability of lower-income families to afford milk.

ANOTHER PROBLEM that has to be wrestled with in the complex arena of dairy marketing is the apparent protection provided for coops under the Capper-Volstead Act. The act has been construed by FTC, as well as by the dairy associations, as exempting them from anti-trust laws.

However, according to Attorney General Scott's office, it will be argued in the suits that this act, which concerns cooperative practices in connection with agricultural production, does not apply to the non-producer dairy coops or their "super-pools" (the excess profits, alleged to be illegal), which are a marketing apparatus.

All of this will not be resolved for some time since, according to government attorneys, the cases are still in the pretrial stage.

Blondes Are Back In The White House

by HELEN HENNESSY

NEW YORK (NEA) — Mrs. Richard M. Nixon may be the first White House blonde that most Americans remember. But there was another, back when, who charmed the country with her grace and flair for planning parties that were talked about a long time afterwards.

That was more than 100 years ago when bachelor James Buchanan took his niece with him when he went to Washington as president in 1857.

Violet-eyed Harriet Lane was 24 years old. She was already known for her beauty and charm. She had been the darling of Queen Victoria's court during her uncle's appointment as ambassador to England.

Perhaps it was the sprightly change from the gloom then settling over a nation that was moving toward a civil war. But whatever it was, Harriet had the right combination to charm her native land as thoroughly as she had enchanted England.

ORPHANED AT NINE, she was a high-spirited tomboy when her uncle sent her off to convent schools. There she blossomed into a poised but witty beauty. She braided her long golden tresses and wrapped them in a neat chignon on top of her head. She wore clothes that enhanced her lithe body. Her gracious entertaining earned her fame as a hostess.

History tells us that Harriet became as popular as Dolly Madison had been in her day. When Buchanan's term ended, there was praise for Harriet but little for her vacillating uncle who had been unable to act as the division between the states deepened.

Harriet married a few years later and went to live in Baltimore. But she never forgot her uncle. When she died, she left $100,000 in her will for a monument to him, which was finally erected in Washington, D.C.

MRS. NIXON IS the second blonde to set the pace of Washington society. And, unlike Harriet, she has a blonde reinforcement — her daugher Tricia.

More — in this election year the wife of the Democratic contender to replace Mrs. Nixon's husband is also a blonde. Although a different shade — Mrs. George McGovern.

Blondes are indeed back in fashion and in the public eye.

Newlyweds Attend Family Reunion

A small, informal wedding attended by a few close friends and relatives was the choice of Carol Ann Misicka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Misicka, 231 Westmere, Des Plaines, and her groom, David Alan Norquist. David's parents are the George Norquists of 1138 N. Patton Ave., Arlington Heights.

They pronounced the vows that made them man and wife before Pastor Edwin I. Stevens at South Church, Community Baptist in Mount Prospect on June 30 at 6 p.m.

Carol wore a street-length, A-line dress of white crepe with long sleeves and bodice of lace. Adorning her head was a cluster of the same flowers that made up her bridal bouquet — white roses, pink stephanotis and baby's breath.

THE BRIDE'S sister, Mrs. Sue Brongiel of Elk Grove Village, performed her duties as matron of honor attired in a yellow and white sleeveless, street-length crepe dress. Her brother, Ted Misicka of Des Plaines, served the groom as best man.

Following the double ring ceremony at the church, a small informal buffet reception for about 25 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents. For their wedding trip, the newlyweds traveled to Michigan for four days. While there, David introduced his new bride at a Norquist family reunion.

Mrs. Robert Haas of Hampshire, Ill., was matron of honor and Philip Knapp of Wilmington, Del., best man.

The newlweds are living in Arlington Heights after a honeymoon at Pheasant Run, but will move to Del Ray Beach, Fla., in August. The groom is associated with the Winick Stables of Del Ray.

Cynthia is a '71 graduate of Arlington High School and has been working for Arlington Heights Animal Hospital.

Couple Living In Champaign

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Fryk are now living in Champaign-Urbana following their June 10 wedding in St. Alphonsus Church of Prospect Heights. The bridegroom, a graduate of Wheeling High School, is a student at the University of Illinois.

The former Joanne Liston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Liston, 1820 Tano, Mount Prospect, had as her maid of honor Wende O'Reilly of Chicago. Her bridesmaids were her sister, Mrs. Mary O'Rourke of Carpentersville; the bridegroom's sister, Barbara Fryk; and Tomi O'Reilly of Wheeling.

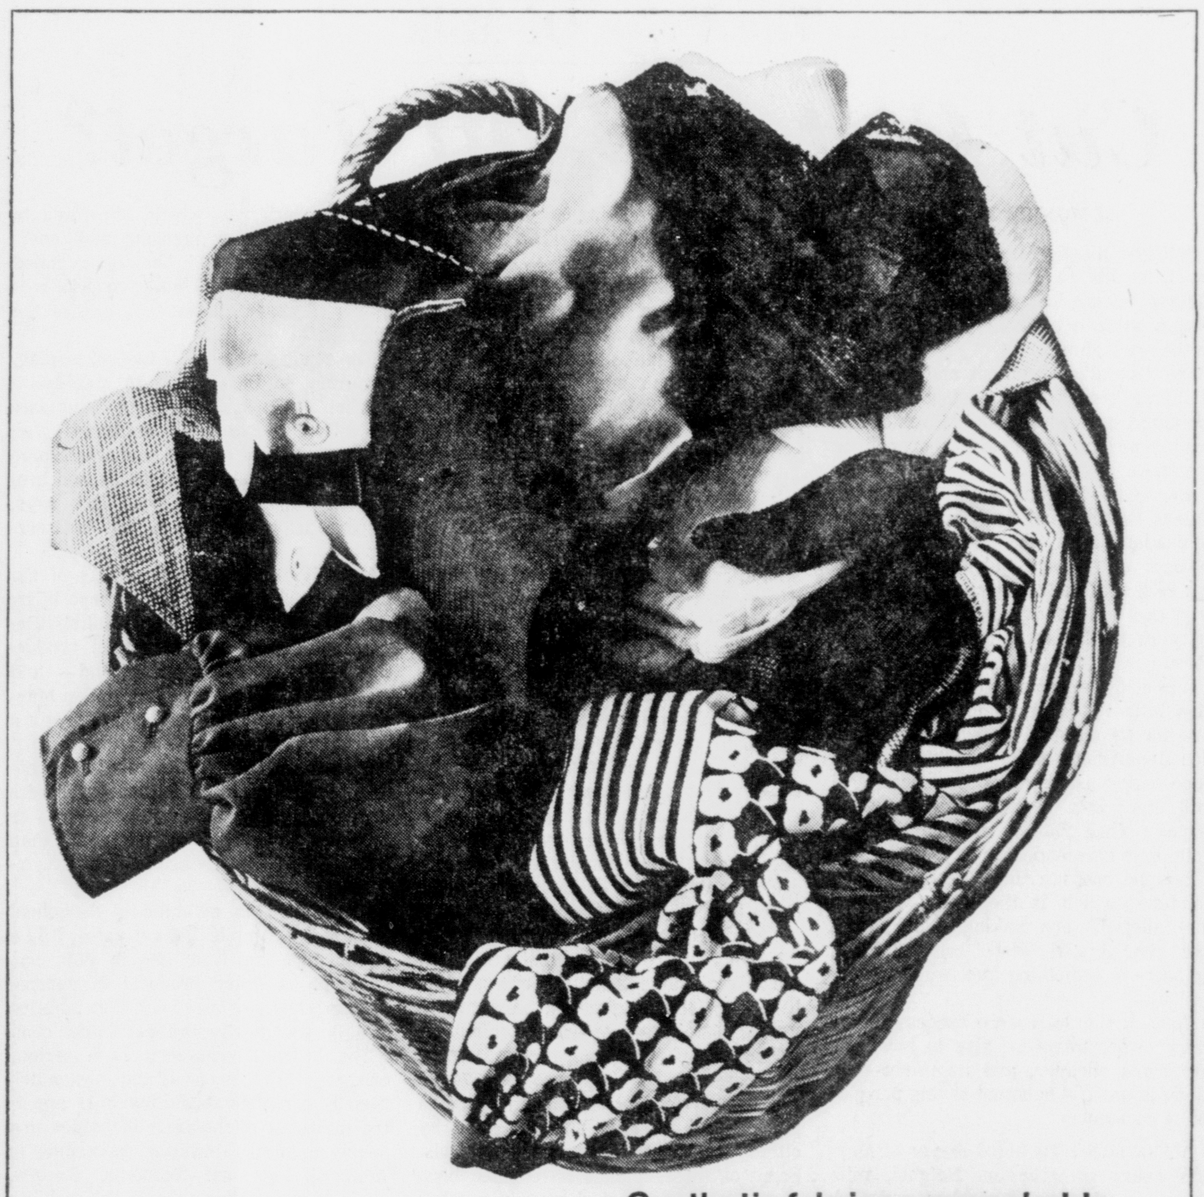

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fryk, 1327 Columbine, Mount Prospect. He had Wasil Pahuchy, his college roommate, as his best man, Terry O'Rourke, the bride's brother-in-law, of Carpentersville; Jim Johnson of Mount Prospect and Jim Harms of Springfield were the ushers and the bride's brothers, Tom and Joe Liston, junior ushers.

Joanne, a graduate of John Hersey High School, worked for Illinois Bell in Morton Grove before her marriage.

Her parents hosted a reception for the 175 wedding guests at the Casa Royale in Des Plaines.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Fryk

Synthetic fabrics are washable, but not indestructible. Be gentle, with an electric dryer.

Today's miracle fabrics can take a lot. But remember, they're still what the name says. Fabrics.

That's when the gentleness of an electric dryer pays off. It's very, very gentle because it dries with a very gentle kind of heat. Radiant heat. That means it dries things the same nice way the sun does.

Many models even have an electronic sensor inside the dryer door to make sure things never over-dry. That's really important when it comes to permanent press.

An electric dryer is as gentle as a dryer can be on today's miracle fabrics.

Matter of fact, it's gentle on non-miracle fabrics, too.

Texidor-Krause Nuptials June 24

Elaine Maria Texidor became the bride of Arthur M. Krause Jr. in an 11 a.m. double ring ceremony June 24 in Queen of the Rosary Church of Elk Grove Village.

Elaine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julio Texidor, 130 Kenilworth Ave., Elk Grove, and Arthur the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Krause, 2407 Wing, Rolling Meadows.

The bride wore a gown of sheer organza with Venetian lace bodice, bishop sleeves cuffed in the same lace and three-layered skirt. Venetian lace also trimmed her cathedral length mantilla veil. The bridal bouquet was of white butterfly orchids, white roses and pompon mums.

Elaine had both a maid of honor, her friend, Donna Sronkoski of Elk Grove, and a matron of honor, her cousin, Mrs. Ada Casado of Whittier, Calif. They wore gowns of peach color chiffon fashioned with a scoop neck. A double layered wide bell ruffle around the neck formed the sleeves of their dresses. They carried nosegays of peach carnations and yellow Sweetheart roses.

IDENTICAL GOWNS were worn by bridesmaids Silvia Texidor, the bride's sister; Patricia Texidor of Lincolnwood, the bride's cousin; Mrs. Terree Flowers of McHenry, the groom's sister; and Margaret Gorman, Elk Grove. They had the same bouquets as well.

Kelly Sue Flowers, McHenry, the bridegroom's niece, and Carol Marie Casado, Whittier, the bride's cousin, were flower girls. Their bright floral print dresses had long skirts, short ball sleeves and wide sashes ending in large bows in the back.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Krause Jr.

Thomas Morenz of Cincinnati, the best man, sang Shubert's "Ave Maria," "Today," "Sunrise, Sunset" and "Wedding Song" during the marriage service.

Ushers included the bride's brother, Bob Texidor; Thomas McNamara, Mount Prospect; and Ken Peters, Jim Quinn and George Sladeck, all of Rolling Meadows.

AT THE SMORGASBORD style reception held at the Viking Table in Rolling Meadows, the bride's father toasted the newlyweds with Spanish wine and champagne for the 175 guests.

The couple spent their three-week honeymoon camping.

Elaine, a graduate of Elk Grove High School and Harper College, will attend Northeastern University this September. Arthur, who has a bachelor of science degree from Northern Illinois, has started his graduate work at Northeastern and is employed at St. Francis Hospital, Evanston.

Susan Jenkins Attended By Twin Sister Sarah

When Susan Jenkins of Arlington Heights was married June 24, her twin sister, Sarah, came from Juneau, Alaska, to be Susan's maid of honor.

The double ring ceremony uniting the daughter of Harry M. Jenkins, 622 S. Bristol Lane, and George G. Selcke of Bloomington, Minn., took place at 11:30 a.m. at the Terrace Shores Community Church in Green Lake, Wis.

Following a weeklong honeymoon on San Andres Island, the newlyweds now are at home at 255 W. 96th St., Bloomington, where Susan and George both teach at the John R. Kennedy High School. George is the son of Mrs. George J. Selcke of Chicago.

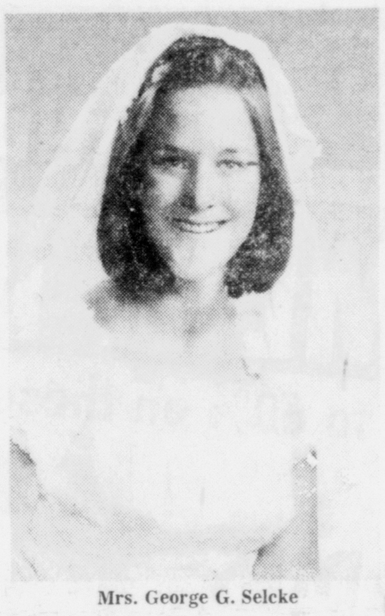

For her wedding Susan wore an Empire style A-line short-sleeved dress of white linen fabric, trimmed with daisy appliques and Venise lace on the bodice and at the hem. A Camelot headpiece held her elbow length veil that was edged with Venise lace and dotted with the same daisy appliques. Her flowers were daisies.

SARAH'S DRESS of celadon green linen was trimmed with daisies on the sleeves and at the neckline and daisies were scattered over the skirt. As bridesmaid, the bridegroom's sister, Kathleen Selcke, wore a dress identical to Sarah's.

George's brother James, from Grand Junction, Colo., was his best man. Another brother, Thomas, of Chicago; the bride's brother, Mack Jenkins of Bay Minette, Alaska; and Tad Delihant of La Grange Park and Melvin Stamm of Madison, Wis., seated the guests.

Following the wedding a luncheon was served at Tuscumbia Country Club in Green Lake.

The bride was graduated from Arlington High School and attended St. Lawrence University at Canton, N. Y., and Johns Hopkins University. The bridegroom graduated from St. Thomas College, St. Paul, Minn.

Mrs. George G. Selcke

For A Happy Life

It's Fun in July To:

1. Serve Sunday morning breakfast on the porch.
2. Buy your husband some new fishing gadgets just because you think he's nice.
3. Take a bouquet of garden flowers to someone who doesn't have a yard.
4. Plant some lettuce seeds for a late fall crop.
5. Start wearing colored nail polish again if you have been going without it.
6. Decide which chores could be taken over by other members of the family.
7. Track down some long lost relatives and keep in touch.
8. Note the old saying: "Drink does not drown care, but waters it, and makes it grow faster."

Deena Hallquist was Deirdre's maid of honor, and Andy Hibbs and Casie Baran were bridesmaids. All are Palatine friends of the bride. They wore crepe gowns in lilac and cream and carried nosegays of carnations to match.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I know you tend to go overboard when speaking of chuck roasts, but I like them, too. Do you have a recipe using chuck roast that could be a company dish? — Alicia M.

I like one that Diane Gottlieb concocted. Even his nibs admitted it was out of the ordinary. She just used her imagination with things found on the shelf and I can recommend it warmly.

Brown a well-marbled chuck roast on one side in some of its own fat, also browning a sliced onion. Then pour over it 1 small can of seasoned, stewed tomatoes, 1 cup red wine, 1 small can chopped black olives and a package of frozen green beans. Let it cook covered for about 3 hours at 200 degrees. Baste it once or twice. It's fine when there's some left over so it can be eaten cold. Next week I'll publish another that Margaret Dodge gave us for company fare.

Dear Dorothy: We had a sink that kept backing up until we put a ½ cup cashing soda in once a week. The trouble finally stopped.—Lynda H.

Dear Dorothy: When some old but still lovely draperis came back from the ers looking just about as bad as when I sent them, experimenting was in order. After all, if it didn't work, I had nothing to lose. I washed them in tepid water with delicate soap flakes in a wringer-washer which belonged to a friend. They came out perfectly. Didn't even shrink. — Louise Lewis.

Dear Dorothy: When my child has a heat rash during the hot weather, I pour out half of the powder in the baby pow- container and fill it with cornstarch. This keeps her nice and dry. — Mrs. D.S.

Majority Favor President Nixon

Survey Reveals McGovern 'Weak'

by JEAN CAFARELLA

"McGovern is a communist!"

"He has a solid and appealing platform."

"He's a redneck!"

"He's a disaster — I think I'll leave the country."

"Well, nobody could do worse than Nixon."

"McGovern will get politics out from behind closed doors."

"McGovern talks with a forked tongue."

Such were some of the opinions of Senator George McGovern given in a random sample at Woodfield and Randhurst shopping centers.

Fifty men and women, ranging in age from 18 to 85, were asked what they thought of the Democratic nominee and whom they would vote for this November. Twenty eight said they favored President Nixon, 13 said they would go with McGovern, and nine were undecided.

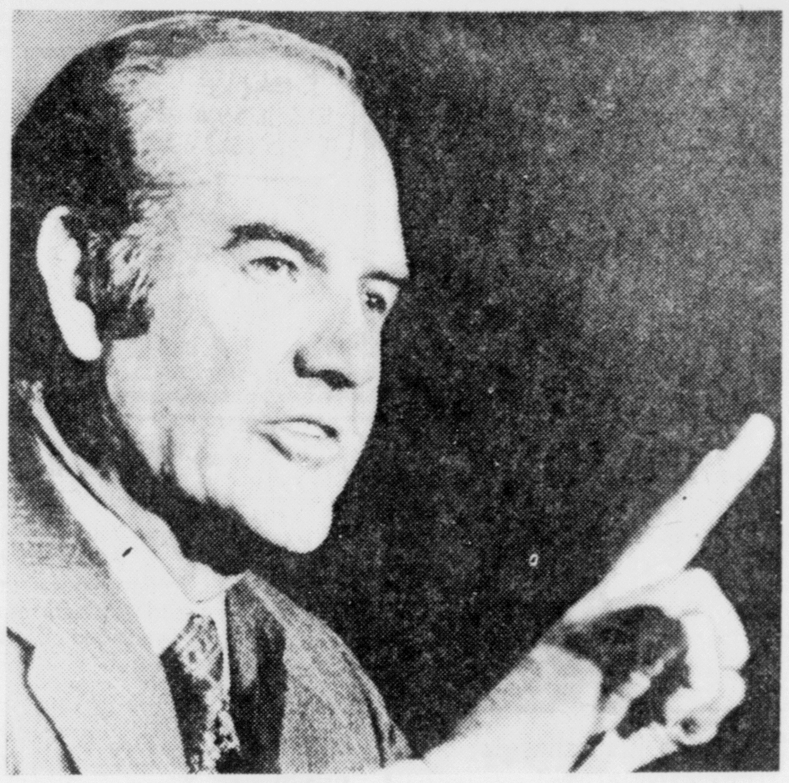

Support for Nixon may not be as enthusiastic as the numbers show, however, even among those who voted for him in 1968. Several people said Nixon needed improving, and some thought he's done his best job in the last six months.

McGOVERN HAD HIS detractors, but many Republicans in the sample voiced a liking for his personality and politics. Nevertheless, they're sticking with the party.

Five of those polled said they had always been faithful Democrats — until now. Their allegiance is going to Nixon this fall.

Most of the people who said they were anti-McGovern were between the ages of 21 and 30. Furthermore not all his support comes from young people.

"McGovern's got a new system which has to come sooner or later. The system in existence now needs changing, and I think McGovern will get politics out of the smoke-filled rooms." This came from a 66-year-old man.

Sen. George McGovern

"I don't like the McGovern platform. I don't like what he wants to do to income tax and I don't like this gay lib stuff. It's communisum," said a 22-year-old woman.

Women tended to like McGovern more than the men, and the women also seemed less inclined to vote along party lines. Most of McGovern's supporters were either under 30 or over 50. Nixon supporters were evenly distributed in all age groups.

So how come only a fourth of the people like McGovern? The pet peeves of the McGovern haters seem to be his stand on Vietnam pullout and income tax reform, his personality, and the "creeps" who support him.

"I DON'T LIKE HIS rash statements about getting out of Vietnam. I think he's appealing to emotionalists," said a 40-year-old man.

"I can't believe the Democrats spent all week at a convention and came up with McGovern. I don't like his tax plan at all." A 32-year-old woman said this, then mentioned that before she was married she had been a Young Democrat.

"There hasn't been a good president in 30 years," said a 50-year-old man. "The major fault with the Democrats is they can't control their resources and pay their bills. And nobody wants to join a bankrupt company."

"I don't care for his policies; he doesn't know what he's talking about. I don't like his followers. I'm switching to Nixon," said a 67-year-old woman.

"McGOVERN? THUMBS DOWN," said an elderly woman. "He's too liberal. You need big business to keep the country going, and you need the establishment. I don't believe in taxing businesses to give money to those who won't work."

One 48-year old woman swore up and down that she would move to another country if McGovern is elected. "He'll be disastrous to the economy — taxes will be exorbitant. I'm trying to keep two kids in college and I'm not getting any tax relief. And I didn't like that convention ballot stuffing and unstuffing," she said. "I've voted Republican since Kennedy was in office, strictly as a matter of survival."

Several people said that McGovern's personality is just not appealing, and felt that he's not intelligent enough to be president. Most of his supporters favored his "straight forward" personality and his stand on Vietnam. One 18-year-old said that McGovern would keep him out of Vietnam, so he'd vote Democratic.

Nixon supporters overwhelmingly said that "Nixon's done a good job in spite of what things were when he started. It would be a mistake to change now."

Yougest Mayor Busy – Hunting A Part-Time Job

AYRSHIRE, Iowa (UPI) — Nestled obscurely amid rolling, lush Iowa farmland, the tiny town of Ayrshire hardly seems the place where political precedent would be set, but that's just what happened last fall when the people of Ayrshire elected Jody Smith their mayor.

At age 19, Jody is the nation's youngest mayor, but this summer he's just like any other 19-year-old looking for odd jobs between terms in college.

During the school year, Jody attends nearby Iowa Lakes Community College in Emmetsburg, a two-year junior college. He is a sophomore with two quarters left before he transfers to a four-year school to complete his education.

Ayrshire has no major industries and few businesses. The population is between 275 and 300 and although there are few young people in the area, jobs are scarce. Often Jody helps his father, Elmer Smith, by pumping gas at "Elmer's Gyp Joint" on the edge of town, but if there's farm work available, Jody jumps at the chance.

ON ONE RECENT sweltering day, Jody Smith was found about eight miles from town helping a crew of farm hands shell last year's corn crop. His job was driving a grain truck loaded a little too full with more than 26,000 pounds of shelled corn. No, he didn't have time to stop, but he'd be glad to talk while tooling down the road in his truck.

Casting a wary eye for Iowa highway patrolmen who are "tough" on overloaded farm vehicles, Jody freely discussed his first six months in office and confidently boasted of "no trouble at all" in running his town. Running his hand through longish but out-of-style hair, the gangly mayor noted that the night before, the Ayrshire Town Council accepted his recommendation for a $2,400 street improvement program that will fulfill his one and only campaign promise — fixing the streets in Ayrshire.

"I only wanted to fix the streets when I ran for mayor," he said. "I had no idea all this would happen."

"All this" includes a congratulatory telephone call from President Nixon before he was even sworn into office; an active role in a young voters group made up "mostly of sports heroes" seeking to reelect the President; a Nixon appointment to a special advisory committee that recognizes outstanding work in ecology; and a bevy of photographers and newsmen invading Ayrshire to catch a glance of the nation's youngest mayor at work.

Jody is a devout Republican although both his parents are independents. He is assisting Republican Gov. Robert D. Ray as well this summer in his campaign with an assignment of coordinating young voters.

"I LOVE POLITICS. Anything that's involved with politics I thoroughly enjoy," Jody said while trucking down the road.

His future plans are uncertain but they tentatively include at least a bachelor's and possibly a master's degree in government. Where he decides to transfer to complete his college work will hold the key to Jody's future as mayor. "If it's close enough to home, I'll run again. I really love the job," he said.

His adventures in politics have convinced him that he's in the right field, but the big question now is where to pursue his political career. "I love the small town, but I also love the challenge of a big city," Jody said.

The street program is the major accomplishment of his first months in office, Jody said, but he also has taken it upon himself to remodel the town hall, a two-room converted school house that also houses the ancient Ayrshire fire truck. The outside of the building is a shambles — "We'll fix that next year" — but the inside is bright blue, newly paneled and sparkling clean, all for $350.

"It was a real mess, just unbelievable, before we started," Jody said. "There was no labor involved, though, because I did it all. The marshal helped me with the paneling and the clerk with the painting."

Ayrshire has a $25,000 annual budget, and Jody has accomplished about as much as he can this year without overspending. "I don't know of any new projects. I've about spent our allotment this year, and I'm contented for now."

The people of Ayrshire weren't thinking about a blow for young voters last November when they elected Jody, and most residents say they are pleased with what Jody has done so far. The townsfolk wanted a change, they say, and they've had one.

"I'M SURE THEY were expecting something different than they got when they elected me mayor," Jody said. "I hope they're pleased with what they got, but you'll just have to ask them."

"It's a little different to have a mayor that young," commented Floyd Peterson, who farms southwest of Ayrshire, "but I think it will work out all right because he's a good boy."

Mrs. Lois Graham, 51, who works in the only grocery store in town, said the whole town is "very proud of him. I've never heard an unfavorable comment at all on what Jody's trying to do."

"He's a level headed young man, and I'm sure he'll do a good job for us," Mrs. Graham added. "It wasn't the young people who put him in office, you know, because there aren't very many of them. It was the people my age who voted for Jody. We're satisfied because this is a small town and you can't do it all overnight."

Jody's family is not interested in politics and they like the attention brought to them by Jody's public office even less. Mrs. Smith said her biggest hope is that the whole thing "doesn't go to his head. He hasn't changed yet."

Elmer Smith just runs his 28-year-old gas station and ignores the whole thing. "I'm clear out of this thing," he said. "I just told him to shut his damn mouth about it."

Jody gets mail from all over the country and has a stack of clippings which his mother claims stands three feet high. Included in the daily mail are several "nasty letters" which Jody says mainly deal with his support of President Nixon. "I just wish they'd sign those nasty letters so I could write them back," he said.

The mayor is unshaken in his support of the President and considers his reelection a certainty. Although many of his peers criticize the President for the war in Vietnam, Jody says, "I figure the President knows more about the war than we do."

Don't take it on faith.

When Rev. Gordon Johnson decided to build a new church, he had to sell his old one.

So it was no miracle that he came to Baird & Warner, and we helped him.

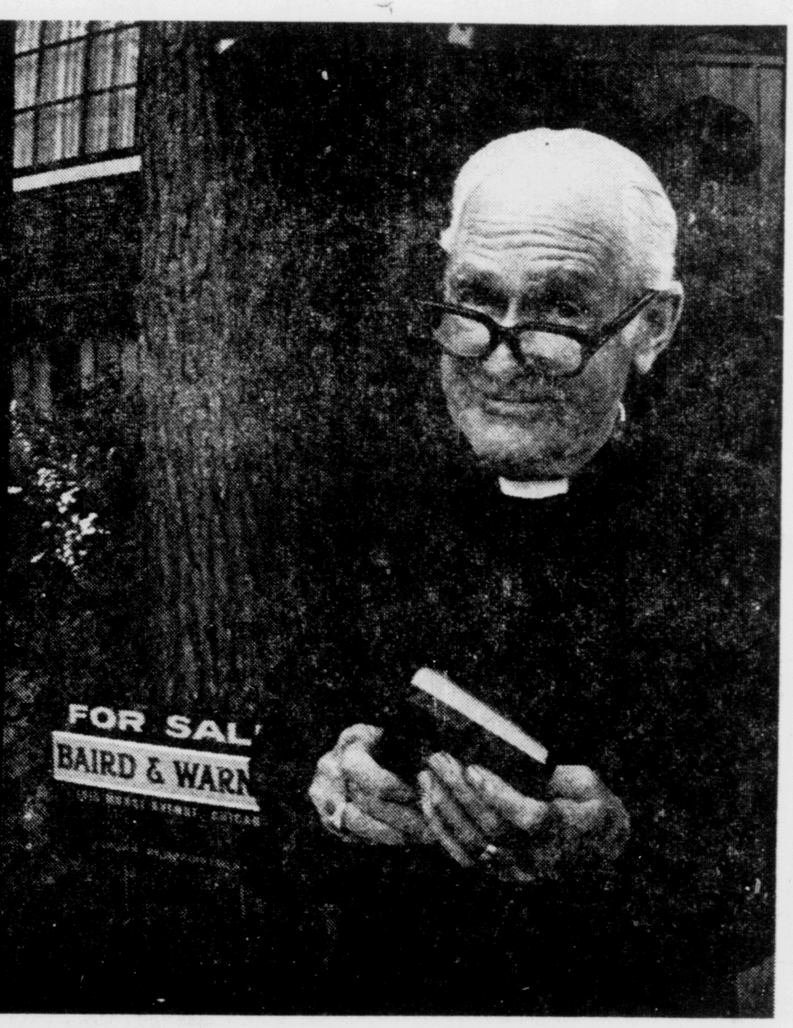

At Baird & Warner, we're 28 offices and over 200 full-time salespeople strong.

And to help our people be extra effective, we advertise on an epic scale. In seven day metro newspapers. Over 100 community papers. Time magazine. O'Hare dioramas. Outdoor billboards.

We also have a free executive relocation program (called RESET) for companies transferring employees to and from the Chicago area.

So if the prospect of buying or selling a home is disrupting your peace of mind, call in Baird & Warner.

And be saved.

Last year, all John Benson saved was $54.32.

This year, he joined the Payroll Savings Plan.

Poor John. Money just seemed to slip right through his fingers. Every time he planned to stash something away, there wasn't anything left.

Then John decided to join the Payroll Savings Plan where he works. Now, an amount he specifies is automatically set aside from his check before he gets it. And invested in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Because John has become such a systematic saver, he's almost forgotten about it. When he gets around to remembering, he's going to have quite a nest egg laid away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

If you keep forgetting to save something out of your check, join the Payroll Savings Plan and let somebody else do the remembering for you.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

A Free Country — At A High Price

by TOM TIEDE

LUVERNE, Ala. — Five years ago G. T. Miller was one of the most prosperous businessmen in this small (pop. 2,000) deep-Dixie community. His flourishing feed mill and cotton gin complex dominated the market for miles.

Today Miller and his firm are on the edge of bankruptcy.

Why?

"Oh, well," says Miller, burying his hands in the pockets of his overalls, "I've been cussed, discussed, lied to, hung up on, stoned at, shot at and boycotted. The only reason I'm still in business here is to see what in hell will happen next."

Actually, 70-year-old George Thaxton Miller stays in business for better reasons than curiosity. He is trying to prove a hard point: This is a free country.

THE MAN'S woes began in 1968. About the time this area was beginning to integrate its public schools. Miller was, in the vernacular of the time, a well-known "nigger lover from way back." He employed both blacks and whites at his mill. He was an easy touch for any poor-folk charity. He even, they say, shaking their heads, had some kind of bleeding-heart scheme whereby he would help his employes, black or white, build their own homes; he'd give the workers land and building materials — on interest-free loans — and supply much of the construction labor; the only thing he asked was that the new homeowner help with the building and guarantee the upkeep.

Well, anyway, everybody knew old Miller was cozy with the blacks. But it was a peccadillo usually forgiven. Because he had some saving graces. He was, after all, a true son of the South. Born poor. Family of eight. He plowed fields as a kid, 12 hours a day, with an old one-eyed ox. "But, dammit, he worked his way up." His mill and cotton gin became one of Luverne's most important businesses. A dozen structures. Sitting both sides of Route 1, north of town. "You had to admire the old coot; even with the blacks there he did good work and charged a fair price."

BUT THEN, when the insistent arm of federal law finally reached into Luverne, and the integration orders threatened to destroy centuries of local bigotry, fate chose G. T. Miller as part of the drama. The son of one of his black workers was among the first to integrate Luverne's school. Somehow this was construed as Miller's fault. "I remember it like it just happened," says G. T. "One day some cars drove up to my place, filled with Ku Kluxers (members of the Ku Klux Klan). They said, 'Miller, you got to get rid of this here black.' I said why? And they said, because we don't want his blackass son in our school, that's why.' They made some threats what would happen if I didn't follow orders. Then they loaded up, all red faces, and drove away."

Miller knew the threats were not smoke. He had had dealings with the Klan before. In 1920 he joined the organization, taking its propaganda of "Christian principles" at face value. When he found out the principles included "whupping people with three-inch leather straps," he quit. Shortly after his resignation, he says, he was "shot so full of buckshot that when I went swimming, well, I liked to sink."

Despite his familiarity with the ways of the Klan, however, Miller stayed fast on the matter of his black employe. He refused to fire the man. And the KKK struck. "They organized this boycott of my place. And I felt it immediately. Old customers, old friends, stopped coming in. People began to avoid me on the streets. My business and my social position dropped to zero. Plus the usual Ku Klux harassment — threatening phone calls, burning crosses, vandalism. Yes-sir, they hit me good."

TOO GOOD. In five years Miller's customers have dropped from 465 to a present 185. Where he once netted $35,000 a year, he now operates at an annual loss of from $12 to $16,000. "Worst of all, I had to fire the black worker anyway. Business got so bad I had to let most of my 25 workers go. Now we only keep six or seven fellas."

So it is that G. T. Miller has gone from business riches to rags. Or very nearly. He says he keeps his doors open with the help of some church organizations which sympathize with his predicament and admire his pluck. "But even if I didn't get a cent from the outside, I'd still keep going. I ain't ever gonna close my place down. I mean, I'm not about to kowtow to a bunch of dumb fools in white bedsheets."

In fact, there are indications now in Luverne that the kowtowing may be the other way around. White bedsheets have lost their clean in the South. The once fearsome KKK is little more than a joke in Alabama. Miller hasn't been threatened, stoned or chased from his home (he once had to live in his mill, for safety) for more than a year. "Hell, I even got some old customers coming back now. Now and then one'll drive up and say: 'Miller, I'm gonna do business here again.' They don't say much more than that. But that's crazy. They know and I know what they really mean."

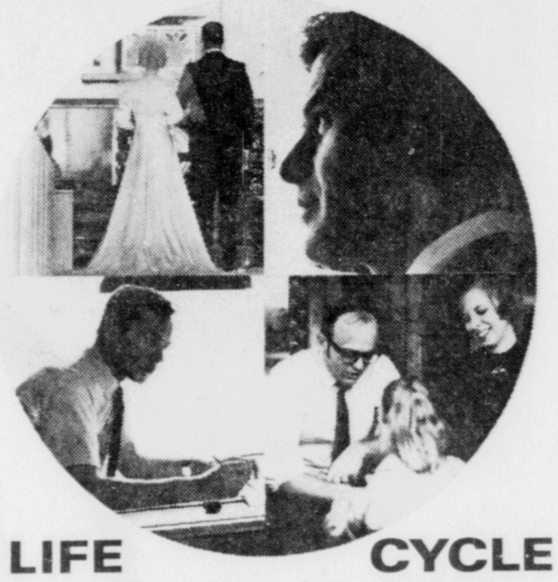

The turnaround, sadly, has probably developed too late to save Miller's business. The boycott has opened up competitors and alternate milling methods which, unlike KKK harassment, won't disappear. Yet G. T. Miller is undismayed. Rather, he is back to his old tricks. "I think by now I've proved this really is a free country," he says, "so I don't go worrying about the business any more. Now I'm just worrying about poor people. I got this idea I'm working on to build this big Co-op and to organize all the blacks and whites on these little farms around here so . . . " Ah, well, folks sigh, shaking their heads, that old B.T., he's a nigger lover from way back.

At Long Last, White Sox Are 'Fumigated'

(Last of Two Parts.)
by IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

CHICAGO — (NEA) — The White Sox needed a good fumigation. And they got one fast. They went from the foulest team in baseball in 1970 to one of the spankingest today.

Not since Hercules, the first Mr. Clean, scrubbed out the Augean Stables has there occurred so great an ablution——

In a few short years, the old dusty Sox ownership, the cobwebby front office executives and field leaders and players matched spiffy new uniforms. Images were overhauled, from the miserable reputation that you take your life in your hands when going to the White Sox Park to the notion that there was nothing much to see even if you kept your jugular intact.

There came a change from a last-place club (106 losses in 1970) to a contender; from a team that drew flies (stable staples) to one that will draw a million fans; from a team with faceless and hitless nonwonders to a team with a star of the greatest magnitude, slugger Dick Allen.

It began with John Allyn, brother of former major stockholder and Sox president, Arthur Allyn. The latter wanted to sell the club or move it to Milwaukee, where the White Sox in 1969 and 1970 were already playing 11 "home" games a season. John Allyn thought Chicago was a fine sports town and felt that proper management would rejuvenate interest. (In 1970, club attendance fell to less than half a million — the lowest in almost 30 years.)

So John bought out his brother Arthur. Then John made Stu Holcomb, a club publicity man of sorts, the general manager in charge of performing an image transplant. Holcomb replaced Ed Short with Roland Homond, then the California Angels' director of player personnel. He hired Chuck Tanner a young, bright, hard hand-shaker, to replace Don Gutteridge as manager. And both brought in Johnny Sain, perhaps the best pitching coach ever hatched.

Changes came frighteningly fast in the spring of 1971.

Uniforms were changed. The design was to less clutter. So the names on the shirt backs were removed. "For protection, I guess," was the then — cynical view of Sox reliever Steve Hamilton. Red stockings replaced white stockings, to give an impression of fiery speed.

Trades were made: infielders Luis Alvarado and Mike Andrews; pitcher Tom Bradley, outfielder Jay Johnstone, catcher Tom Egan, outfielder Pat Kelly and Rick Reichardt were obtained. Later, the trade for mercurial first baseman Allen, who has become a happy South Side favorite with his floppy feet and brilliant bat.

Sain, always a man with original thoughts, devised the iconoclastic pitching rotation that allowed only two days of rest for regular starters Wilbur Wood (who had been brought out of the bullpen and made a 20-game winner), Stan Bahnsen (another trade) and Bradley. In another break with tradition, young arms, such as Dick Gossage, Steve Kealey and Terry Forster, were made the top bulls in the pen instead of the usual old line veterans.

Harry Caray, an exciting, controversial radio announcer was hired and created even more interest.

The fans began to return. Yet there was still a problem: the ball park. It is the oldest in baseball (built in 1910, it has been described as looking like a "docked paddle-wheel steamer").

White Sox Park — still called Comiskey Park by everyone including the Chicago newspapers — was once hard by the worst slums of Chicago, the northern Tobacco Road. The smell from the nearby stock yards was staggering.

Over the years, the slums have been torn down, replaced by some Chicago housing projects as well as part of the campus of the Illinois Institute of Technology. Most of the beef slaughtering houses have moved to Kansas City. Now, there is an airiness to the area, with only a faint smell of blood — which may be more remembrance than reality.

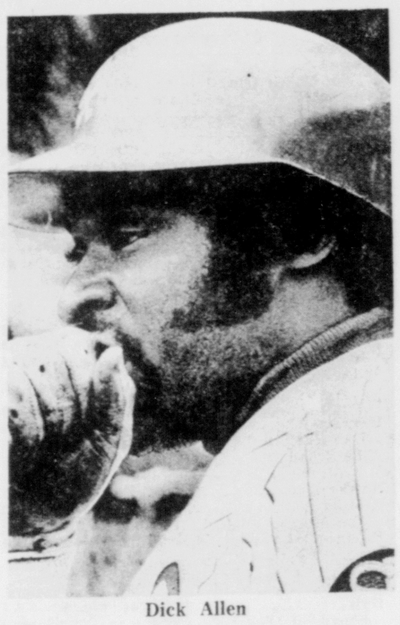

"But we still had to sell the place as a safe and enjoyable one to come to," said Holcomb. "Brochures to businessmen and posters on city transportation were part of the campaign."

The park is still located on 35th Street and Shields Avenue. But as part of the change of image, the ball club has changed its address to 35th Street and Dan Ryan Expressway (the expressway is a block from the park). The park hasn't moved, but the 10-year-old Dan Ryan, which has now made easy access from the Loop to the South Side, gives a dollop of suburbia to a strictly inner city site. A relatively new rapid transit system runs along the Dan Ryan, and signs boast that a trip on it from the Loop to White Sox Park takes only six minutes.

Although Holcomb insists that much of the dread reputation of the park is undeserved (it is bordered on the north and east by Italian and Croatian neighborhoods), still there has been greater police security in and around the park, and more floodlights installed in the newly blacktopped parking lots. (And policemen are still whisperingly instructed to tell motorists not to risk parking north of 35th Street, in the heart of the city's black belt.)

Despite the changes of surface image, it is obvious that fans will risk any kind of physical discomfiture to cheer a dashing, triumphant team. The exciting "Go-Go" White Sox proved that all through the 1950s.

Now that the madhatter of an exploding scoreboard is going off more than ever to celebrate the locals' homers, jubilant fans are returning to Comiskey Park — er, White Sox Park, at 35th and Shields — er, Dan Ryan Expressway to watch the White Sox who wear red sox win.

Paddock Patrol

by Jim Cook, TURF EDITOR

A JOCKEY is one commodity that doesn't come in all shapes and sizes.

A jockey is a unique breed, a compact breed seemingly created from a special miniature mold. Yet pound for pound, he's sometimes more dynamic that the half-ton of thoroughbred under him.

Not many jockeys would survive on the basketball court or the football gridiron, but aboard a racehorse, doing his own thing in his own distinctive niche, it's little wonder why he's a contributing factor that has made the sport, by far, the leading spectator attraction in the nation.

A jockey is comparable to the quarterback or pitcher, and like the players of those respective teams, there are inevitably good ones and not so good ones.

It wasn't hard distinguishing present-day legend John Sellers from the others in the jockey colony Saturday afternoon at Arlington Park.

"Gentleman John," at only 5-7 and 115 pounds, is admittedly one of the bigger riders in the business, but at 6-4, I could still see the tops of the bustling jockeys' heads even after I sat down on an equipment trunk.

"Bobby Jennings is probably the tallest jockey riding," Sellers said. "Right now, I guess, he's riding at Hollywood Park. He's about six-feet even."

Height, actually, is not the major concern of the mighty-mites. "Obviously, the larger the frame, the heavier the jockey," Little John said, "but you get to that top weight of between 118-120 and after that, there aren't many mounts left for you."

The typical weight-watcher's greeting Saturday was not "How are ya doin?" or "How many do ya ride today?" but rather "How light are ya?" The quarter-pound graduated scale in the middle of the floor answers such requests.

John has never had an overweight problem in over 17 glorious seasons in the silks. "I'm small-boned," he said while comparing the ratio of his hand to mine. "I don't follow a strict diet or starve myself. I guess I'm lucky in that respect."

He's also been fortunate in another — namely injuries — perhaps the foremost fear of any jockey. An accidental spill might terminate the profession for which the little guy is so well tailored.

"I've been out between 3-4 weeks with a broken arm and another 3-4 weeks with a broken shoulder blade, but that's about it," Sellers said. "I don't want to jinx myself, but staying healthy has been one of the keys to any success that I've had."

The Sellers success story can be traced back over 30 years ago when "Gentleman John" was but five years old. Although already the owner of his own riding pony, it wasn't until he was at the ripe age of 13 that a Boy Scout master suggested he think about becoming a jockey.

"When I was 15 years old, I still weighed only 90 pounds," Sellers recalled. "A couple of boys at school had been riding quarter horses and they had their own money and car. I thought 'why not?'

"I rode only in a few quarter-horse match races and won. That's when I decided to become a jockey. I think I got only 10 or 20 dollars for those races."

Almost a quarter of a century later, Johnny Sellers reached one of many pinnacles of his illustrious racing career. The occasion was the 87th running of the Kentucky Derby and John was reining the soon-to-be-named Horse of the Year, Carry Back.

The ultimate thrill for a jockey came 2:04 later. It took him only 1:57-3 to wrap up the Preakness and the second leg of racing's Triple Crown, but John had to wait until 1965 to win the Belmont aboard the famed Hail To All.

What a climb since winning his first race at Sunshine Park, Tampa, Fla., March 7, 1955!

The 1961 bonanza netted John Sellers the annual leading jockey crown on a breakdown of 1,394 mounts, 328 winners, 212 seconds, 227 thirds and a 24 per cent winning average.

His steady creep up the ladder of leading jockeys' lifetime records had him in 10th place in all-time money-winners as of last year. His banner campaign in 1961 was again chiefly responsible for the acclaim.

In that single 12-month span, Sellers raced for $2,141,729 — second only to the immortal Willie Shoemaker's $2,690,819. They were the lone pair with earnings over the two-million mark.

On June 10, 1961, Johnny guided five of seven mounts to the wire at Washington Park. Two weeks later, he parlayed five straight to the winner's circle at Arlington Park. On Oct. 3 and 4 of that same annum, however, Sellers whipped the final three across on top at Atlantic City before coming back the very next day for the initial five straight — a world record of eight consecutive victories in succession!

Normally a jockey's agent will study the condition book published periodically by each track and offer his client's services. Sellers' 1961 feat instantly made him a valuable piece of property whose services were in great demand. Trainers and owners were knocking down trying to book him on their mounts.

The secret to success is actually a relatively simple technique, according to Sellers. "The parade to the post gives you a chance to get the feeling of the horse — whether he's anxious or whether he's lazy," he said. "Once you leave the gate, the main thing is keeping in balance and keeping in stride with the horse.

"If you can imagine carrying someone on your back, it's only logical that the less movement and more harmony you get from your partner, the quicker you'll be able to move and the better the race.

"On the other hand," Sellers continued, "if you're sloppy and bouncing all over the guy's back, the harder it's going to be for him to run and the easier it will be to knock him out of stride.

"The trainers give you a pretty good idea of how the horse runs — whether he likes to go to the front right away, whether he runs in or out or whether he likes to come from behind — but jockeys have to do their own thing out there. They have their idiosyncrasies that they follow. If worse comes to worse, we'll study the past performance charts on the horse."

Of course, jockeys can't ride forever. Even the great Johnny Longden admitted that when he stepped out of the irons for good in 1966 after 40 spectacular years.

Sellers, with almost 17 full seasons under his tiny belt, accepts this realization, too. When he thinks his riding career is over, he'll probably engage the insurance business for Penn General Agencies of California, Inc., located in his birthplace of Los Angeles.

Hopefully, it won't be too soon.

He may wear only pint-sized boots, but they'd be awfully tough to fill.

Paddock Olympics Draws 11 Entries

Eleven park districts have cast their hats in the ring to announce their candidacy for the Sixth Annual Paddock Olympics to be hosted by Schaumburg Aug. 1-2.

The tournament of champions for area park districts will be held at Conant High School and has lured defending titlist Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove Village, Hanover Park, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Salt Creek, Schaumburg and Wheeling.

The two-day affair for boys and girls ages 8-13 promises to make every competitor a winner. Each participant, regardless of performance, automatically receives a handsome patch for his or her involvement in the Olympics.

In addition, ribbons will be distributed to the first five positions in each individual event plus the first three places in team competition.

The 1972 renewal of the Paddock Olympics marks the elimination of the team events of softball and kickball, but the addition of the 100-year dash, basketball free-throw shooting and team tug-of war.

The established competition in standing long jump, 50-yard dash, jump rope, team shuttle relay, softball throw, individual kickball and tennis singles will remain on the agenda.

The Park district accumulating the most points after the festivities will be rewarded with a huge traveling trophy inscribed with its name and a permanent plaque issued the following year.

Palatine captured Paddock Olympic honors in both 1967 and 1968 before River Trails broke the string in 1969. Roselle garnered the hardware in 1970 while Arlington Heights claimed the prize after a sizzling finish in the 1971 campaign.

Host Schaumburg Park District has circulated entry sheets to the respective participants and asked that they be completed and returned no later than July 26.

A final reminder, including a map of the area and locations of where the events will be run, will be distributed to the participating park districts within the next few days.

Monroe Dazzles Despite Drizzle, 2-0

by TOM CARKEEK

The Legion baseball teams from Des Plaines and Norwood Park endured a steady drizzle to run through four-and-a-half innings in just over an hour Monday night, and give Des Plaines its third consecutive victory over the Chicago team, this time by a 2-0 count.

The last half inning was played in almost total darkness, and no sooner had Des Plaines' fireballing Larry Monroe burned a third strike past Rick Wisniewski to end the top of the fifth than the home plate umpire waved his arms and yelled, "That's it!"

That game-ending strikeout was Monroe's 11th of the evening, quite a feat since there were only 15 putouts. Monroe had no trouble with the top half of the Norwood lineup, making the first four men strikeout victims twice apiece. Still, Norwood Park placed at least one man as far as second base in four of the five innings.

The only runs Des Plaines needed were produced in the bottom of the fourth. Rich Luzinski was safe on an error and, after All-Star centerfielder Bob Chen struck out for only the second time all year, Randy Jespersen was hit by a pitch.

Then big Steve Scholten boomed a towering drive to deep left on which Norwood Park leftfielder Fred Foote made a miraculous running, over-the-shoulder catch. The ball was hit so deep (it easily would have cleared any fence at local diamonds) there was serious talk that had Luzinski tagged up at second he might have been able to score.

Rick Haaning stepped up with two on and two out and blooped a little pop -up into short centerfield which scored both Luzinski and Jespersen for the game's only runs.

Des Plaines had difficulty solving Norwood Park hurler Tom Clark. Clark, by no means an overpowering type of pitcher, offered a lot of sidearm, off-speed pitches, including a good knuckleball that danced all the more with the wind blowing out.

Norwood had a man on second when the final out was recorded in the first inning, left two men stranded in the second, again left a man at second in the fourth, and had a good chance to tie the game in the fifth.

With a man at first via a fielder's choice and one out, the sky suddenly blackened. Monroe, wanting to complete the inning to make the game official, began to work much faster than he normally does and in the process walked a man and then threw a rare wild pitch, putting runners on second and third with two outs. Wisnieweski fouled off several of his better offerings but Monroe finally got him to go down swinging and preserve Des Plaines' triumph.

Wildcats, Mustangs Win; Falcons Tie

Only three Northwest Summer League baseball games went barely the required number of innings before a downpour hit the Herald area Tuesday. In this limited action, Wheeling trounced Fremd, Rolling Meadows blanked Fenton and Forest View tied Crown.

WHEELING ROLLS

The Wildcats socked visiting Fremd with a four-run first inning and then coasted until the game was halted after 5½ innings, 7-2.

Bob Peter, the starting and winning pitcher, led off the initial rally with a single. Shortly after Pat McGinn's hit, Peter was caught in a rundown between third and home. A throwing error allowed both to score. Four other singles in the inning by George Kaage, Jerry Geimer, Paul Groot and Ken Margalski scored two more.

After a double by Jeff Hanisch scored Fremd's first run, the 'Cats came back with one in the bottom of the third. Geimer singled and Groot doubled him home.

Two more came home for the hosts in the fourth. Howie Brower and John Theriault singled with Brower scoring on an error. Theiriault also danced home shortly after on a first and third double steal.

The Vikings pushed one across in the sixth. Kevin Phelan walked, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on a double by Fred Smith.

Larry Coughlin was the losing pitcher.

MEADOWS TAKE CHARGE

Darkness halted the Rolling Meadows-Fenton game after four-and-a-half innings Monday night but not before the Mustangs had tallied four times and held their hosts scoreless.

Rolling Meadows went right to work in the first inning, getting all four of its runs. Marc Klemp led off the game by drawing a walk, moved up on a passed ball and scored when Mike Saugling pasted an RBI single.

Then Pat Early singled and Jack Lloyd walked to fill the bases. Jim Freres came up and stroked a single to right scoring two runs and Joe Riplinger followed suit with another run-scoring base hit.

That was all the scoring for either team. Rolling Meadows hurler Keith Goeske went the full five innings, surrendering two hits and four walks while registering eight strikeouts. The Mustangs had only one more hit after their four-run first inning.

FLUSTERED FALCONS

Forest View and Crown barely got the official four innings in before the rains hit Monday, but still couldn't determine a winner, 2-2.

Ken Meek, Forest View's pitcher, was protecting a slim lead before Crown gained a tie in the fourth inning on a squeeze bunt following a single, error and sacrifice. Crown had scored its first run in the opening inning on a walk, hit, and error.

The Falcons also scored in the first on a single, walk, sacrifice and another hit by Neil Schmidt. Their other run came in the second on a home run by John O'Brien.

Sorry, Mark

Mark Leonhard, ace pitcher for Arlington Heights Legion baseball team and Hersey High School in the spring, and one of the best pitchers in the Ninth District, was inadvertently left off the league's all-star roster printed in Tuesday's Herald. We regret the error.

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

Thanks to spring storms that finally managed to arrive in mid-July, there isn't a lake or river within 50 miles that is going to be up to its normal mid-summer standards. So when a man who works on typewriters can't go fishing, he often reads his mail.

And comes an interesting and exciting story from a Des Plaines reader about a huge fish which he didn't get to land because it was so big it broke his rod and got away.

Sorrowfully we must say, Sam, that we believe the fish was a whopper. But it wasn't the fish that broke the rod, because a fish just cannot break a good fishing rod. I am sure you have seen the salesman in the store tie a sash weight to a fish line and then crank it up off the floor with the reel. The rod is bent double and that weight swings back and forth like a clock pendulum . . . but the rod doesn't break.

The reason the rod doesn't break is that it has been designed to take such stress as long (this is the important part) as long as the stress is applied via the line through the guides! virtually all fiberglass rods are tubular. They derive their spring and their strength from this tubular design. And they lose their strength when the tube at one point on the rod is crushed out of shape . . . like in a car door or station wagon rear window.

In short, the rod that breaks under the weight of a fish is one which has suffered previous damage . . . like being stepped on in the boat. And in almost every case the rod was damaged well before it broke . . . and worse than that . . . damaged while it wasn't even being used. The point — almost any rod you own can handle anything you will catch, providing you take care of the rod.

The best way to transport a rod is in its own case, not in the trunk or the back seat. The best way to store rods is not in a bunch in the corner behind the door. They should be hung vertically out in the air where they can dry after every use. Ordinary cup hooks work just fine, or you can spend a few bucks and get something like Lazy Ike's Rod-Rac that makes a handsome display.

But the rod is only one part of a three-component system that connects a fisherman to a fish. The other two are the line and the hook. (Reels will take up another entire column the next time it rains.)

Most anglers use monofilament line these days and most anglers are completely unaware of its unique weaknesses.

Monofilament doesn't rot the way silk or nylon used to rot right on the reel. But it does get rotten. Mono deteriorates in its own way, particularly after long exposure to sunlight. And it ages and is subject to abrasion the way nylon never was.

The best way to be sure your line isn't going to let you down is to pay attention to it. The first five feet this side of the lure is most subject to wear and you should periodically run this section through your fingers while you're fishing. If you feel a kink or a rough spot or a thin spot brought on by stretching, break it off and re-tie your lure up higher.

And although it will hurt to do it . . . you really ought to change the entire spool of line about every third or fourth fishing trip. Some fanatics change all their mono every time out, which may be a slight case of over-kill.

There are only two knots that will work consistently in monofilament, because mono, unlike filament lines, won't take just any old granny or square knot. You will have to learn to tie a clinch or an improved clinch knot. (If you can tie the first the second is a snap.) A clinch knot is easy. Just run the mono through the eye of the hook; wrap the loose end back aroung the other strand at least five times and then run the loose end back down and through the loop you made when you started wrapping. (To improve it, bring that same loose end back up and through the loop you made when you went down to go through the original loop.) It's easier to teach with pictures.

And finally, comes the business end of the tackle that perhaps creates more trouble than any other single piece of equipment . . . the hook.

Most fishermen are a lot more lure conscious than they are hook conscious. A lure is the gadget that attracts and gets the fish on . . . but it is the hook that holds him there. Except for keeping a taut line, the fisherman has less to do with keeping a fish on than the hook. If you don't believe that, try fishing with a barbless hook sometimes, you won't hold one out of two dozen.

Although I am not one who sharpens hooks, the fact remains that a hook must penetrate a tough mouth when you're fishing for bass, pike or trout, so those who choose to whet their barbs are not wrong.

And you must never, never, never buy hooks or lures because they are "cheap," because those are the ones you see lying around the fishing dock or in the bottom of a rental boat with a broken hook or a straightened hook.

Of course, even the finest hook can be broken, but it is not likely to break in a fish's jaw.

And now that your tackle is in such fine shape, if you really insist on going fishing this weekend . . . ark or no ark . . . then you had better make up your mind to fish with live bait, because a fish with anything less than radar will never find a lure until the dove shows up.

Park Shore Fun Match —

Park Shore Kennel Club will hold its fourth fun match on Sunday, Aug. 13, in the air-conditioned Northbrook Sports Complex, 1730 Pfingston Road, Northbrook, between Willow and Dundee roads. Adult admission will be $1.00, children 50 cents.

The match will be open for entries at 9 a.m. until one hour prior to breed judging. Judging of some breeds will begin at 10 a.m. The pre-entry fee is $3.00; $3.50 at the gate. Classes for dogs of all varieties and breeds are on the show calendar with the judging divided by sex in all classes.

One of the show features will be classes for puppies in the 3-6, 6-9, 9-12-month age groups. There will also be classes in American-bred and Open. Puppies will not compete with adult dogs. Junior Showmanship for children ages 10 through 16 will be judged by Paul Sheppard of Deerfield.

Jack Phelan Jr. of Manhattan, Ill. will judge the Best Adult dog in the match from the six variety groups.

For more information regarding entry blanks etc., contact Mrs. Gerald Druth, 1734 Ellendale Drive, Northbrook, Ill., 60062, telephone 312/272-1813.

Deerfield K.C. match results —

A Bulldog and a Lhasa Apsos won Best Adult in Match and Best Puppy in Match at the Deerpath Kennel Clubs match held on June 25, at Wheeling High School.

The Bulldog "Kid Oswald" is owned by Harold Kyler of Chicago. The Best Puppy "JOI-SAN'S Gol-Den Mocca of Ky," a Lhasa Apsos, is owned by Annette Emanuel and Joyce Shambough, Glen Ellyn. There were nearly 900 dogs entered in the event and the picking of the Bulldog as the Best Adult in Match was met with great spectator approval.

On the increase —

The average yearly increase in show and obedience trial entries has been 10 per cent, and the first three months of 1972 shows a 15 per cent increase.

A recent survey also showed that the overall dog population continues to rise throughout the United States. The estimated dog populaton is now placed at 32 million, a 36 per cent increase in the last seven years.

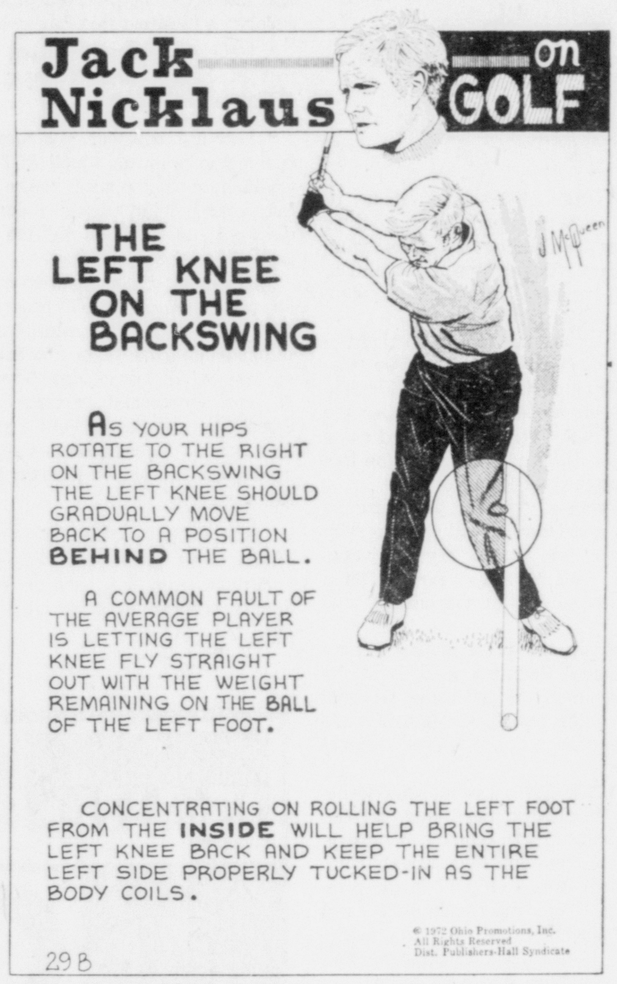

It took 50 years — from 1884 to 1935 — for the AKC to register a total of one million dogs. In the last two years more than a million dogs have been registered each year.

It goes without saying that anything related to dogs, be it food, supplies, grooming or what have you, is now in the realm of big business.

Barks & Bays —

One apartment builder in the area really gave a little thought to the subject of where do you walk your dog when you live in an apartment complex.

Heset aside a large fenced in exercise area for residents to exercise their dogs.

Anti-Commercial Group Gets Results

by RICK DuBROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A maverick organization called Action for Children's Television (ACT) continues to dig its spurs into commercial video, and the results should be welcomed by anyone fed up with home screen programs for youngsters.

Possibly you have noticed, or heard about, the success of the organization in its suggestions for the pre-school television show "Romper Room." After ACT commissioned a study of the show, and negotiated with the program's top executives, these major changes came about:

—Brand name toys are not used in the content part of the program; that, is, in the regular presentation of material for the youngsters.

—The teacher-hostess has stopped doing commercials or selling during the program. Says ACT: "These changes, which ACT welcomes, culminate four years of negotiations with the show's producers . . . and its owners.

"LAST YEAR ACT commissioned a study of five days of a typical 'Romper Room' program in Bangor, Me., where . . . the program was involved with commercialism including the juice drunk by children on the show.

"In meetings major changes were promised, and ACT's followup monitoring in 10 cities across the country proves that these promises have been kept.

"Many other children's TV programs still allow host figures to be actively engaged in selling. ACT looks forward to January 1973, when the new ruling of the Broadcasters will come into effect stipulating that no hosts or primary cartoon characters can be involved in selling on children's TV programs."

A while back, despite noting its progress in dealing with "Romper Room," ACT nevertheless added:

"There are, however, still commercials during the program which ACT believes would be better placed before or after the program; but this is a decision for the local station which airs the program rather than the producers."

There have, of course, been many public critics of children's programs and other influences on commercial television to improve them and make them go easy on the advertising. The example of non-commercial video's "Sesame Street" has, naturally, been a major factor. But ACT, Massachusetts-based organization, has helped lead the fight, too. And it says:

"ACT WILL CONTINUE its work to eliminate all commercial pressures from children's television, and to encourage quality programming for children of all ages."

Jack Paar To Do Series Of Specials

NEW YORK (UPI—Jack Paar of "Tonight" show memory will do a series of one-hour specials for ABC specializing in interviews with various personalities. There will be one a year for five years, beginning in the 1972-73 season.

NBC has a one-hour musical portrait of America scheduled for Sept. 9. The title, "Ballad for Americans," will stir some memories for those who remember the cantata of that name that attained some fame in the 1940's as created by the late John LaTouche and Earl Robinson.

Marlo Thomas, star for five years of the "That Girl" series, will resume relations with television after a year's vacation in an ABC special, "'How to Be a Woman," scheduled for the coming season.

CBS will do the broadcasting honors for the annual Grammy Awards of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences in the spring of 1973. The 90-minute special will originate in Nashville, Tenn.

COMEDIAN PAUL Lynde, who seems to be on television more than anyone else, guesting here, there and everywhere, will have his own weekly situation comedy series on ABC in the coming season. "The Paul Lynde Show" will air on Wednesdays, 8-8:30 p.m., beginning Sept. 13. He plays an attorney with wife, two daughters and a son-in-law.

Yale Summers has replaced Lawrence Casey as the Rodney Harrington character in NBC's "Return to Peyton Place" daytime serial. Summers has served time on such programs as "Dakari" and "General Hospital."

The Channel Swim: The death of NBC-TV correspondent Aline Saarinen is a loss to viewers who for years admired her uncommon style as both a reporter and a woman, as well as her exquisite graciousness . . . On screen, she projected the kind of image that the network likes to think it represents to the public, a combination of competence and elegance.

The Democratic Presidential nominee, Sen. George McGovern, is the guest Sunday on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation". . . Same day, John Connally, former secretary of the Treasury and a Democrat who says he will support President Nixon for re-election this fall, will be interviewed on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

CBS-TV's college credit series, "Sunrise Semester," will offer courses on "Twentieth-Century American Art" and "Law and Morality" in the fall term starting Sept. 24 . . . A half-hour documentary on the fast changing role of women in politics, "The Hand that Rocks the Ballot Box," airs on ABC-TV July 26.
